Georgian Says Repeal Would Be Best Thing Possible to Serve Farmers of Country.

SMITH DEFENDS
ASSAILED BILL

Guns Levelled at Crop Reports; Declares All of Estimates in Past Have Been Wrong.

Washington, April 18.—(AP)—The senate's cotton slump investigating committee got off on a new slant today when a volunteer witness, Martin F. Amorous, of Marietta, Ga., appeared to declare that the federal machinery to regulate cotton trading had created a system "wrong from rim to mill" and that the best thing for cotton farmers would be repeal of the cotton futures act.

Naturally that started a fuss with Senator Smith, of South Carolina, committee chairman and joint author of the assailed act, and the session was adjourned at an earlier hour than usual, until Friday.

Amorous' appearance came at the close of the prolonged examination of Samuel T. Hubbard, Jr., president of the New York Cotton exchange, who completed his account of the steps taken by that organization in the last year and a half to correct conditions in that market against which complaint had been made.

Steps Effective. Hubbard expressed the belief that these steps were already proving effective in curing disparities between New York and other markets that may have lent themselves to the manipulative operations. He consistently refused, however, to be led into any discussion of the charges made by Arthur R. Marsh, of the New York exchange, against Anderson, Clayton and company, of Houston, Texas, attributing to that firm a large share of responsibility for the 1927 cotton price smash.

The New York exchange official, although not placed under oath, said he regarded himself as a witness in court and would make no statement to which he could not swear.

Most of the session had to do with southern delivery on New York futures contracts.

LEGISLATION OPPOSED.

Hubbard opposed legislation to provide for such a change as he had opposed altering the rules of the New York exchange itself during the long controversy over the point with William L. Clayton, head of the Houston firm, leading the fight for adoption of that system. Senator Smith informed the witness he was considering an amendment to the cotton futures act, giving the cotton exchange a public utility character and requiring delivery on future contracts and natural cotton concentration points. He added, however, that he was considering a requirement that the point of delivery be written in such contracts when they were offered on the exchanges to avoid any "sinister use" of the change in method.

Hubbard said it would be impossible to go into such detailed commitments in the "confusion of the cotton ring," but the senator answered:

Nomination of Al Smith On Anti-Prohibition Plank Seen as Result of New York Editorial.

BY SAM W. SMALL.
(Special Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, April 18.—Behind the doors of democratic dens today there could be heard vigorous and variant expressions of party feelings.

Most of the leaders of democratic sentiment and action had read the editorial leader in today's New York World, declaring that Governor Al Smith must announce himself definitely as the wet candidate for the presidency. That demand set the old captains of the line to whooping or to snoring over a manifest dilemma.

The World says that "every poll and every local election in the pivotal states brings additional proof that the democrats outside the solid-south are militant wets." That statement draws vehement denials from representative democrats, who point to the democratic members of the house of representatives for proof that western democrats, when they elect representatives at all except in the big cities, usually elect dry congressmen.

Few Recruits Gained. On that line the wets have gained scarcely any recruits since the ratification of the eighteenth amendment.

And it was freely predicted today that only a bare handful of democrats, following a wet leader, would secure western seats in the next congress.

The World further says that "Governor Smith is being swept along to nomination."

CHILD IS KILLED
BY TROLLEY CAR

Mother of 18-Months-Old Boy Witnesses Fatal Accident in Front of Her Residence.

Struck down in front of his home by a trolley car before the horror-stricken gaze of his mother late Wednesday afternoon, Graham McLane, 18-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McLane, of 774 Boulevard avenue, N. E., died before his body could be extricated from underneath the car.

Mrs. McLane was sitting on her front porch when she realized the danger to the child. She sprang to her feet and raced toward the street, but the street car struck the child before she could reach his side.

O. L. Ayers, of Route No. 2, Decatur, operator of the car, declared the child stepped suddenly in front of the car and was struck down before he could stop. Mrs. McLane was prostrated with grief and was unable to give her version of the accident.

Ayers said he was driving the out-bound Boulevard car at a moderate rate of speed when the car struck the child.

"I was proceeding slowly, having just made the stop at the intersection of Boulevard and St. Charles avenue," he said. The little child was playing on Boulevard between the two lines of double tracks. Another car was about 200 feet in front of the one I was operating and I was coasting at the time. Suddenly the child stepped

Bill Believed Likely To Become Legal Despite Voiced Objections by White House Chief.

SENATE REGARDED CERTAIN TO STAND

Tilson Announces Three Changes Necessary for President to Change Attitude on Measure.

Washington, April 18.—(United News.)—Friends of the Jones-Reid Mississippi flood bill said today they have 303 votes in the house for the bill, more than enough to pass it over a veto. As the bill passed the senate unanimously, it would appear possible for congress to make it a law regardless of white house opposition.

Debate in the house today was led by the opponents of the bill, one of whom caused a scene of temporary disorder when he attacked former Senator William Lorimer, of Illinois, a sponsor of the bill, who has been sitting on the house floor listening to debate under his privilege as a former member. Feeling was shown several other times.

Opposed to Lorimer. Representative Schaffer, Wisconsin republican, declared he had rather follow Representative Frear, Wisconsin republican opponent of the bill, than Lorimer, "who was kicked out of the senate."

Representative Sproul, Illinois, republican, demanded that Schaffer withdraw his remark. Other indignant members crowded around Schaffer and demanded that he withdraw his attack. Finally Schaffer agreed to do so.

Administration house leaders held conferences today looking to compromise amendments which would make the bill acceptable to the president.

No agreements have been reached and unless there is some program agreed upon the house is ready to vote the bill essentially as it stands.

THREE AMENDMENTS.

Floor Leader Tilson, after a conference with the president, announced that three amendments would make the bill acceptable at the white house: Placing a limit on expenditures involved in flood control.

Centering authority to let contracts for the project in the hands of the army engineers, where they could be more thoroughly scrutinized with the president holding control.

Requiring local communities to guarantee levees.

With these amendments the president, Tilson said, would abandon his insistence upon direct contributions by states affected.

Representative Aswell, Louisiana democrat, accused Frear of demagoguery in charging that corporations would profit by the bill. Frear retorted that if the indictment were true it also applied to President Coolidge.

Imposed on by Friends. "I think President Coolidge is being imposed upon by his advisers," Representative Cox, Georgia democrat, said. "If the government finds it necessary to acquire land it will not pay 10 times the cost of the land as charged here by Mr. Frear. The government can be charged only the market value of the land. The argument that somebody is going to be enriched has no standing in this question."

Representative Ragon, Arkansas democrat, said the bill was a compromise but he favored it. Representative Jacobstein, New York democrat, asked if it was not a strong argument for the bill that the United States Chamber of Commerce endorsed it. Representative Davenport, New York republican, replied that it might seem to be until one studied the chamber's tax plan.

Major General Edgar Jadwin, army engineer chief, was in conference with republican and democratic house leaders on flood control. Chairman Reid, Fall's Son-in-Law Told by Nye That Board Does Not Believe He Is Telling Truths.

FAILURE TO DETAIL
TALK IS BLAMED

Chase Is Charged With "Ducking" Questions on Conversation With Interior Secretary.

Washington, April 18.—(AP)—After facing a fire of questioning from four members of the senate Teapot Dome committee for nearly three hours, Clarence C. Chase, of El Paso, son-in-law of Albert B. Fall, was bluntly told by Chairman Nye today that the committee did not believe he was telling the whole story of his knowledge of Fall's financial transactions with Edward L. Doheny and Harry F. Sinclair.

The North Dakota senator referred especially to Chase's failure to give details of the conversation he had with his father-in-law late in 1928, when Chase was sent to Washington to appear before the committee in the oil inquiry in place of the former interior secretary, who then was ill at his home at Three Rivers, N. M.

At Senator Pittman, democrat, Nevada, expressed it, Chase "ducked" the committee at that time and he subsequently was developed that he had failed to appear on the advice of the late J. W. Zexely, counsel for Sinclair, who, Chase said, knew all about the $100,000 transaction between Fall and Doheny as well as the $235,000 Liberty bond deal between Fall and Sinclair.

Huston and Blair Testify. Claudius H. Huston, of New York, one time chairman of the republican party ways and means committee, and Harry M. Blair, of New York, formerly assistant treasurer of the republican national committee, were the other witnesses of the day, but both declared that they had no knowledge of Constitutional Trading company Liberty bonds other than that obtained from reading the newspapers.

Each declared entire ignorance of the $280,000 Liberty bond advance by Sinclair to Will H. Hays, former chairman of the republican national committee, in 1923 to help wipe out the party deficit. Huston said the organization had no knowledge of the $400,000 to pay off the $700,000 deficit.

The former assistant commerce secretary testified that late in 1923 the late Fred W. Upham, then treasurer of the republican committee, had informed him that the deficit had been "taken up" but he did not explain where the funds had come from other than the money was that Huston's organizations had received.

Raised No Party Funds. Both Huston and Blair said they had nothing to do with raising the party funds in New York city, explained by Hays, but they explained that the money was for New York.

CONVICT ADMITS
HALL-MILLS CRIME

Man Held in Oklahoma Says He Shot Couple While Mistress Held Them in New Jersey.

El Reno, Okla., April 18.—(AP)—A confession to the killing of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, near Brunswick, N. J., September 14, 1922, was signed in the county jail here today by Elwin F. Allen, 28 years old, who recently was converted at a religious meeting in the jail.

The confession, supplemented by a written statement to W. P. Morrison, county attorney of Canadian county, says that he was paid $7,000 for the killing by an Elizabeth, N. J., dentist, who, it says, was a relative of Mrs. Mills.

It says that Allen's common law wife held Mrs. Mills while Allen shot her. The woman's name is not revealed, but Allen, today, gave Morrison the name of his other alleged accomplice, which Morrison is withholding until he has communicated with Francis J. Bergen, prosecutor of the state of New Jersey. County authorities were checking Allen's story tonight with records of the case. They had found some discrepancies, notably that Allen had placed the killing in 1921 when it occurred in 1922, and that he mentioned a make of motor car used in the slaying that had not been placed on the market at that time. They said, however, they were impressed by correlation of details in the confession with facts of the case.

Allen, who has a long criminal record in the east and southwest, is held in jail here on a charge of burglary.

IRISHMAN TO TAKE REPAIRS

FOR FINAL HOP TO NEW YORKGANGSTER BIRGER,
DEFIANT TO FINISH,
WILL HANG TODAY

Snearing Killer Calls Threats Through Bars of Cell to Men Building Gallows.

Benton, Ill., April 18.—(United News.)—All legal avenues of escape having been closed, Charlie Birger, notorious and defiant gang ruler of southern Illinois, was spending his last few hours on earth in a death cell tonight.

He will be hanged Thursday morning for plotting the murder of Mayor Joe Adams, of West City, and paying three of his "hangers-on" at his former gangster roadhouse, "Shady Rest," $50 a shot for the three bullets fired into the mayor's body.

Outside his cell window Birger could see tonight the scaffold he will climb in the morning. It was the scaffold which State's Attorney Roy Martin dramatically pictured to the jury during the trial last July when he said "Charlie Birger placed himself on the scaffold by this crime—do not take him away."

Birger's last hope to "save his neck" faded Tuesday when a jury in Franklin county decided he was sane and turned down the plea to send him to an asylum. It was the last of a series of legal efforts to avoid the gallows. Two appeals to the supreme court and another to the Illinois pardon board succeeded only in delaying the hanging date. Governor Small refused to intervene.

Birger was convicted last July along with Art Newman. Once his chief lieutenant but later his worst enemy, and Ray Hyland, driver of the "death car" which carried the actual slayers. His two henchmen were given life sentences.

One of the actual slayers, Harry Thompson, previously was sentenced to life. He confessed that Birger hired him and his brother, Elmo, now dead, to fire the shots that killed Adams. Elmo was killed in the "death car" which carried the actual slayers. His two henchmen were given life sentences.

Birger, former saloonkeeper, ranch owner and bootlegger, has been charged with numerous crimes during the days he and Carl Shelton, as leaders of opposing gangs, fought for supremacy of the liquor business in the St. Louis district of southern Illinois. He and Shelton formerly were friends but an argument caused bitter enmity to spring between them.

Birger always has assumed a defiant attitude—that he was "above the law." The Adams murder warrant was issued several weeks before he was arrested and he defied authorities to serve him, saying he was busy hunting Carl Shelton and had a bet of $500 he would kill his chief enemy.

But the crime was committed in Franklin county and the authorities crossed into his home county of Saline one day and arrested him. Once inside the Franklin county jail, the law closed gradually tighter about him until it dangled the noose above his head.

He sneered when convicted and even up to today maintained his defiance of the law. He called through the bars of his cell to the scaffold

Rickenbacker Declares It Most Potent Force To Come Under Man's Control.

BY LOYD A. WILHOIT.
Definition for the science of aeronautics:

"The most potent force ever to come under the control of man; one that will either build a new civilization or destroy the world."

That's how Captain Eddie Rickenbacker sees the future of flying, and he should know what he's talking about. During the world war he was America's ace of aces, performing feats of daring and of mechanical dexterity that startled the armies of the earth. When the war was over he continued as a leader of aviation and today is one of the best posted executives on flying in this country.

Here with the Cadillac Motor Car company, in which he is assistant sales manager in charge of LaSalle sales, Captain Rickenbacker Wednesday told what the world may expect of the science of aeronautics. A gripping, interesting story it was—one that sounded like a chapter from some old Jules Verne novel in the ears of the man of yesterday.

Daring Rescue Flight
Described by Schiller

"Duke" Schiller, who piloted the North American Newspaper Alliance plane to the relief of the Bremen's crew at Greenly island, returned yesterday afternoon to his starting place at Murray Bay with the following story supplementary to his earlier account telegraphed from Clarke City, Quebec, to all North American Newspaper Alliance members. This paper is the alliance member in this city. Schiller was accompanied to Murray Bay by Major James J. Fitzmaurice, one of the Bremen's crew.

Special Dispatch to Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance. (Copyright, 1928, in all countries by North American Newspaper Alliance. All rights reserved.)

Murray Bay, Quebec, April 18.—Right at the beginning of my piece I want to take off my hat to three brave men.

It was some trick flying the old Atlantic at this time of the year, and the crew of the Bremen were heroes to do it. Their flight was an epic of courage and good fortune.

But before I start to tell about it, giving details I didn't have time to put in my first story yesterday to the North American Newspaper Alliance, I want to say that the biggest kick of my life was when I saw Major Fitzmaurice coming across the ice toward my plane in his uniform, away out there by Greenly island.

I had thought there were just the Germans on board. I guess I hadn't been reading the papers very carefully.

Thinking of Lost. As I came down to the ice in darkness at Greenly island I was thinking of Nungesser and Coli, the Frenchmen who were lost attempting ing the westward flight. And I was thinking of the crew of the Straphael, and of my old pals of the Ontario forestry service, Terry Tully and Metcalfe, and of the men of the "Old Glory" who hopped off and disappeared while I was waiting for a break to take off myself. I was thinking of the other British and American fliers who were lost in the Atlantic flight. Not that I think all of them lie in the ocean, after hearing the stories told by the Bremen's crew. Nungesser and Coli may lie somewhere near beneath the snows of Labrador. It could have happened. Only that Fitzmaurice was all ringed around with four-leaved shamrocks, it would have happened to him and his German friends.

Now for the story as I can give it hot off the griddle. It's tough being a reporter, far tougher than flying to the tail end of Labrador. I got only two hours' sleep a night all the time I was away trying to reach places from which to send my stories out to the Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, and so my stuff may read kind of ragged.

Down in this neck of the woods you don't get much news. I had heard of the Bremen being ready to hop off on a trans-Atlantic flight but I knew little about it. So when I got a long distance call from Montreal saying the Bremen had landed at Blanc Sablon, I said "and where the devil is that?" I got a map and soon found out. It was certainly some distance away, and not very pretty country to fly over. But I said "Let's go." The Canadian Transcontinental Airways, for which I've been flying mail planes to some of the isolated spots of the St. Lawrence, had official word from Ottawa that the Canadian government would be tickled if they could do anything to assist the Bremen. So they went

OPERA BALL PLANS

Driving Club Event To Be Chief Function of Opera Week, Says Music Festival Head.

Elaborate plans for the opera carnival ball to be given at the Piedmont Driving Club on Wednesday evening, April 25, were given the official approval of H. M. Atkinson, president of the Music Festival association, on his return to Atlanta Wednesday from Bermuda. The ball at the driving club, at which the Metropolitan Opera stars will be the official entertainment sponsored by the Opera club for that evening, and in addition to the opera stars, the Metropolitan orchestra and the Metropolitan ballet will be present, as the principal features of the extensive entertainment arranged by the Opera club, that officials of the club, both of the club and of the driving club, have been given approval in the belief that the enjoyment and pleasure of the week. On account of the large number of visitors in Atlanta for opera week, it is expected that both parties will be fully attended.

Ball Principal Event. "The official program of entertainments sponsored by the Opera club, which was arranged some time ago, has as its principal event the carnival ball to be given Wednesday evening of opera week," Mr. Atkinson stated.

"The plans have progressed most satisfactorily during my absence from Atlanta and, with the opera stars, orchestra and ballet as our guests and the many entertainment features arranged, I believe it will be an event long remembered in Atlanta's social history."

"This statement is made merely to prevent any confusion or misunderstanding growing out of the fact that both of the entertainments are to be on the same evening. The two are distinct and separate, and the carnival ball at the driving club is the official entertainment of the evening."

Mr. Atkinson returned to Atlanta full of all the latest information about the coming visit of the star singers. First, Mr. Giulio Gatti-Casazza has accepted his invitation to attend opera in Atlanta this season for the first time in the 20 years he has directed the affairs of that great organization. He will arrive Monday, April 23, and will remain through the end of the week as the guest of Mr. Atkinson.

Next, Mr. Atkinson brought the report that he has never seen as much

"Duke" Schiller and Fitz Reach Lake Ste. Agnes After Perilous Two-Day Journey.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
The Irish member of the crew of the trans-Atlantic monoplane Bremen was back in civilization today awaiting repair parts with which to return to the crippled ship and his ice-locked German companions at Greenly island.

When the repairs are completed, the reconnoitered ship with its three-man crew reunited, will resume its flight from the tiny Quebec island, to Mitchell field, New York.

These developments, announced yesterday by Major James Fitzmaurice, cleared up the uncertainty and conjecture which have attended the projected completion of the hop ever since the Bremen made a forced landing at Greenly island last Friday.

T. A. Smiddy, minister of the Irish Free State, received a tele call in New York from Fitzmaurice, stating that the major would wait at Murray Bay, Quebec, for repair parts for the Bremen, take them back to Greenly island and fly out with Baron Von Huenefeldt, Captain Koehl.

Groves Whelan, chairman of Mayor James J. Walker's committee for the reception of distinguished visitors to New York, also received a telegram sent from Clarke City, Que., by Fitzmaurice, in which the Irish flier asked that the impression that he was en route to New York alone be corrected. He said he was on his way to Murray Bay, Que., to arrange for parts to repair the Bremen and conduct business on behalf of Von Huenefeldt and Koehl. He added that he would return to Greenly island today.

Fitzmaurice landed on Lake St. Agnes, Quebec, yesterday after a two-day flight from Greenly island. The lake is 12 miles from Murray Bay, a popular wintering place on the Gulf of St. Lawrence, only 90 miles from Quebec.

Meanwhile the Junkers plane F-13, sister ship of the Bremen, returned to Curtis field, New York, last night and orders immediately were given for the removal of the propeller, which Pilot Fred Melchor said would be shipped by train to Murray Bay. He said the propeller now being made would be fitted to the F-13 and the ship flown back to Montreal.

Mr. Smiddy said Major Fitzmaurice told him he expected the needed repair parts would be received at Murray Bay today.

REED AID DISPUTES
CLAIMS FOR SMITH

Meriwether Says Wild Statements Will Not Stampede Delegates at Houston Parley.

Washington, April 18.—(AP)—Pre-convention claims made in behalf of Governor Smith, of New York, by some of his supporters were disputed today by Lee Meriwether, in charge of Reed-for-President headquarters here, who branded them as "pure propaganda."

"The deluge of wild claims which over-enthusiastic friends of the New York governor are letting loose upon the country," he said in a statement, "will not stampede the Houston delegates; neither will it blind them to the fact that Senator Reed in the present crisis, when corruptionists are entrenched in power, like Andrew Jackson a century ago, is peculiarly fitted to lead the democratic party to a glorious victory."

MISS HARGIS' PLAY TO ENTER CONTEST

Savannah, Ga., April 18.—(P)—The Town theater, of Savannah, will enter its prize play, "The Hero," in the Little theater tournament for the week of May 7, it was decided today by the board. "The Hero" was written by Miss Frances Hargis, of Atlanta, now a student at Agnes Scott college in her senior year. This play was entered in the Town theater prize competition for one-act plays and won the prize of $100 over sixty or more entrants from various states. It was presented last month by the Town theater with the two plays receiving honorable mention.

The cast that presented the play, under the direction of Mrs. Annot Williamson, Town theater director, will appear in the New York performance. It was composed by O. W. Durouch, Mrs. F. W. Aldaetter, John Mercer and Mrs. Heyward Lynn. Mrs. Williamson and Mrs. Mabel Delorme will accompany the cast to New York.

Miss Hargis has taken a small Georgia town for the scene of "The Hero," and the principal character is a former confederate soldier. The play

RETAIL MERCHANTS WILL MEET TONIGHT

Record attendance is expected at the spring general membership meeting of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association tonight at 6:35 o'clock, when supper will be served in the chamber of commerce assembly hall. How the retail merchant can adapt himself to the rapidly changing conditions in today's retail merchandising will be ably analyzed by Raymond Kline, general manager of the Davidson-Paxon company; Sam E. Levy, president of the Prior Tire company; and C. V. Ho Henstein, executive secretary of the merchants' association, followed by a round table open forum discussion.

Practically the entire sales force of a number of stores will turn out for the occasion. An excellent musical program will be furnished, featured by one of the latest and largest models of electric Orthophonic Victrolas supplied by the Cable Piano company. President G. C. Green will preside.

GOV. SMITH UNABLE TO VISIT GEORGIA

Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, will not visit Georgia following his visit to Asheville, N. C., it was announced Wednesday by Governor L. G. Hardman, who received a telegram from Governor Smith expressing his regrets.

Invitations to the candidate for the democratic presidential nomination to visit Georgia were issued by Governor Hardman, Mayor J. N. Ragsdale and various civic organizations. Governor Smith's telegram read as follows:

"Dear Governor: 'Many thanks for your kind invitation, which I should so much like to accept. I have but a short time to rest, however, and my responsibilities at home make it impossible for me to enjoy the many generous hospitalities that are offered by your southern friends. I look forward to a visit to Georgia and to meeting you on some other occasion. With regards, sincerely yours, ALFRED E. SMITH.'

GOWAN NEAR DEATH IN TARGET PRACTICE WHEN HIT BY SHOT

Backyard target practice on tin cans may result fatally for Richard Gowan, 20, of 6 Morley avenue, who was shot in the abdomen Wednesday afternoon by an "unloaded" revolver, according to reports at Grady hospital. Gowan and R. C. Parlier, 22, of 906 Pelham street, were shooting at tin cans when Parlier, striking the gun with his hand in the belief that it was empty, exploded a cartridge in the gun, it was said.

Gowan was rushed to Grady hospital in the ambulance of Ed Bond and Condon, and was placed on the operating table immediately. At the hospital it was said that Gowan gave the gun to Parlier when the breech jammed, and when Parlier hit Athens, Ga., April 18.—(P)—"Justice, love and service" combined, is the one voice of religion and wherever they are found, there religion also will be found. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, noted pulpit orator and religious leader, declared here Wednesday at the fourth annual religious welfare conference conducted under auspices of the Y. M. C. Dr. Cadman, who is president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America and pastor of the Central Congregational Church of Brooklyn, spoke on "Imagination and Its Relation to Culture." He declared that man's advancement depends upon imagination and is the basis of true religion and true culture.

Decriing attempts to make God "a Baptist or a Methodist," Dr. Cadman asserted that "religion is not sectarianism." Dr. Cadman spoke again Wednesday night at Woodruff hall and will talk again at Woodruff hall Thursday at 11 o'clock. It was announced this week that he would not be able to speak on Thursday as originally planned but since his arrival here Wednesday it was found that he could do so.

The religious welfare conference and parents' day brought a large number of paraded and pastors and other friends of students and the University to Athens Wednesday. Representatives were here from various denominational associations. The first session Wednesday was attended by a tremendous crowd, the big Woodruff hall being filled.

MOONSHINE STILL FOUND BY POLICE ON "DEATH FARM"

The Simpson road "death farm," where the body of a murdered negro was uncovered last year, Wednesday morning gave up a 30-gallon still, the boiler of which was hot from a recent run when county officers located it. The outfit was found within a few feet of the spot where investigators dug up the body almost a year ago.

An underground chamber partially concealed the apparatus, which was revealed by a spiral of smoke from a hidden chimney. No arrests were made.

Engaged in the mortgage loan business for many years, Mr. Burns enjoys a wide acquaintance with men of affairs and with business conditions throughout the country. He expects to make Atlanta his home and will be joined early in the summer by his family, now spending the spring in Washington, D. C.

The territory of this new department will include all the larger cities in the southeastern states. Carroll L. FOSDICK ATTACKS ABUSE OF POWER

Augusta, Ga., April 18.—(P)—While crime and degeneracy are creating a dangerous situation in America, "the more serious problems come not from the weak but from the strong," Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, of New York, told the executive council of the American Bankers' association here tonight.

Dr. Fosdick declared that "there are men of ability who rise to the top in American industry, where only the best can come through, and it is men like this who dishonoring the courts, despising the people, condemning the government, have presented to the world one of the most devastating spectacles of public wrong-doing in the history of government."

Speaking before the annual "family dinner" of the council, attended by more than 300 bankers and their guests, Dr. Fosdick said in part: "The central problem of America today is the handling of power. American prosperity has many sources, all the way from the original opulence of the continent to the corvee system of manufacture. But, however variously caused, it is here and it constitutes the crux of our national and industrial situation."

"Prosperity is not commonly regarded as a problem, but it is. It cannot simply be enjoyed; it must be handled. Always the more serious problems in a nation like ours come not from the weak, but from the strong."

"This is a dangerous situation, but it is also hopeful. For the finest thing in the world is rightly used power. Whether or not America can achieve that goal is the crux of her national problem. To achieve this goal there are at least three things necessary: In personal character, a new emphasis on self-discipline and self-control; in industry, the building up of professional ideals of public service; and in the nation at large, the creation of a new sense of patriotic national responsibility."

Reports Read.

Divisional meetings were held throughout the day yesterday at which reports of various officers were heard. Thomas B. Paton, general counsel, reported passage by the national house of representatives of a bill permit state bank members of the federal reserve system to become depositories of public money under regulation of the treasury department. The bill is now in the hands of the senate banking and currency committee.

George L. Woodward, president of the savings bank division, told the council that of the $48,000,000 individual deposits in the nation $26,000,000,000 is in savings accounts. I've added that 85 per cent of the banks outside of the metropolitan area were handling such deposits.

"The six months ending February 29 witnessed a greater upswing in bank robbery than our membership has suffered in recent years," James E. Baum, manager of the protective committee advised the council. He declared the situation serious enough to command more intensive protective efforts, adding that the speedy tactics of the recently formed vigilantes bands of the mid-west were producing results. Adequate and efficient police power and more stringent court rules together with more ironical criminal laws were advocated by the committee chief.

Annual "family dinner" features were the high spots of today's program. Immediate passage of the Jones flood control bill, now pending in congress, was urged in a resolution unanimously adopted by the executive council. The resolution follows:

"The disastrous flood that visited the Mississippi valley in 1927 was by far the most overwhelmingly destructive calamity that has ever visited our country in generations. The consequent loss of crops, livestock, lands and lives was so appalling that our government promptly ordered an exhaustive financial and engineering study preparatory to the construction of adequate corrective legislation.

"The concrete result of this study, crystallized in the Jones bill, 'S. 3740' is now before congress. The senate has passed it without a dissenting vote. The house is discussing it.

"It is the profound conviction of the executive council of the American Bankers' association representing 20,000 American banks that the control of the Mississippi is a national problem, should be borne by the federal government, since the states affected already have paid out approximately $26,000,000.

"The Jones bill 'S. 3740' recognizes this principle and in our judgment should be passed without further delay."

The resolution was introduced by John C. Lonsdale, of St. Louis, second vice president of the association.

Shortage of Postmaster Who Committed Suicide In Douglas Totals $2,400

The net shortage of L. S. Peterson, Douglas, postmaster, who fatally shot himself and his clerk, Elton St. land, on April 1, amounted to $2,400, for which the surety company is responsible. Joe E. Johnston, postoffice inspector in charge, announced Wednesday on the filing of a report of the investigation by Inspectors H. H. Hudson and T. W. Overstreet.

Mr. Johnston said that the total shortage was discovered to be $7,339, but that $4,935 of this amount was recovered. The report of the inspectors said that Peterson drew three drafts on the Atlanta postoffice for $6,500 for withdrawals in the postal savings fund, and obtained $750 from the postal funds and $580 from the kept deposit funds. Department of justice agents and special investigators from the postoffice department are now conducting an investigation of charges that federal jobs are bought and sold under republican patronage in the state, he said.

REFRIGERATING MEN INSTALL OFFICERS

A talk by Robert Ballantyne, on "Sylica-Jel," the new refrigerant, and a discussion of heat transfer based on a new bulletin recently published by the National Association of Practical Refrigerating Engineers, featured a meeting Wednesday night in the Walton building of the Atlanta chapter of the national association.

An unusually large number of students and others interested in refrigeration, especially the new method of refrigeration by the application of heat to "Sylica-Jel," attended the meeting which was held in the assembly rooms of Refrigeration Publishing company on the fifth floor of the Walton building.

Following the principal address and an open discussion on refrigeration of today, the newly elected officers of the Atlanta chapter were installed. They are George L. Pownall, president; P. R. Upchurch, first vice president; Charles Lloyd, of Marietta, second vice president and C. T. Baker, secretary and treasurer.

DR. ASHBY JONES, FORMER ATLANTAN, TO TOUR ENGLAND

The Rev. M. Ashby Jones, pastor of the Second Baptist church, of St. Louis, Mo., and former Atlanta minister, who is well known to The Constitution's readers through his column, "Text and Pretext," will sail for England on April 21, it was announced Wednesday. Dr. Jones will speak throughout England for two months as the guest of the British Exchange committee of the World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches.

Dr. Jones expects to return to his home in St. Louis the latter part of June. He was the pastor of the Ponce de Leon Baptist church here for many years, and is the brother of the Rev. Carter Helm Jones, pastor of the Second Baptist church, of Atlanta.

LAKEWOOD PARK OPENS SATURDAY

With a return of real spring weather extensive preparations are being made at Lakewood park for the formal opening at 1 o'clock Saturday, April 21, of the south's largest and most complete amusement park. The announcement of the opening was made Wednesday night by Arthur L. Brooke, president of the Southeastern Fair association, which operates the park during the summer season.

J. Oscar Mills, secretary and general manager of the Southeastern Fair association, will again have charge of the park and has been on the grounds during the past month working on renovation of the amusements and rides. He stated Wednesday night that as the opening time is only three days off, a large corps of workmen will be kept busy looking after last-minute details.

Several hundred gallons of paint have been used to paint and clean up every building and riding device in the park and every mechanical device has been thoroughly inspected and many new parts have been installed during the past few months.

Another new ride especially for the young folks has been added to the numerous entertaining features in the park. A donkey ride for youngsters has been built on the hill adjoining the big circle swing. The ride winds back of the swing and is one of the longest in the park.

The motor boat landing has been torn away and rebuilt and ample space has been provided for numerous row boats.

A special concert has been arranged for Sunday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock.

ORMWOOD PARK CLUB WILL CONVENE TONIGHT

New Postoffice Seen for City By Postmaster

Atlanta now stands an excellent chance of obtaining a new postoffice building. Postmaster E. K. Large told the members of the Masonic club at a luncheon given Wednesday afternoon at the Wincoff hotel.

Mr. Large pointed out that since an additional $100,000,000 appropriation for new government buildings has been made by congress, this city may get a new federal building. He said that a new survey of the situation here was made recently, and that he had received a request from the government for additional information, strengthening Atlanta's hopes for the new building.

Mr. Large said that with the award of the contract for the Chicago-Atlanta air mail route on April 30, Atlanta will be made the hub of four converging lines of air mail. The routes already awarded are the lines to New York, Miami and New Orleans, the first two to be opened on May 1, and the New Orleans and the Chicago routes this fall.

2 HARDY ATLANTA URCHINS UNHURT IN 2-STORY FALLS

Two-story falls failed to injure two Atlanta children Wednesday, according to reports at Grady hospital.

Howard Mullinax, 5, of 1563 Boulevard drive, only had a slight bump on the forehead to show for his fall from the second story of his home, while Cora Densel, 3, ward of a child's home, was saved from injury by a screen which broke the force of her fall, it was said.

The Densel child fell through a window when she leaned against the screen, falling to the ground on top of the screen. She was not injured.

TWO MEN ARE FINED AS RECKLESS DRIVERS

In a hearing in recorder's court Wednesday which consumed two and a half hours, E. S. McEwing, 582 Woodward avenue, was fined $25 and costs and R. E. Thompson, of Lawrenceville, Ga., was fined $50 and costs on charges of reckless driving.

According to the evidence given before Recorder A. W. Callaway, McEwing, on the night of April 1, was driving west on Ponce de Leon avenue, when he collided with the automobile of Thompson, which was attempting to pass another car, it was said.

J. M. Council, of Americus, and W. T. McArthur, Sr., of McGregor, were named vice presidents. B. L. Redwine, Madras, and J. A. Bowers, Meigs, were named as members of the executive committee. The president and the two vice presidents also are ex-officio members of the executive committee.

Claude Eubank, of Eastman, was elected secretary. The meeting of the board followed the annual meeting of the members of the association, at which time the following directors were elected: L. A. Dean, Rome; C. A. Addington, Lavonia; W. M. Coile, Winterville; N. M. Adams, Cartersville; B. L. Redwine, Madras; W. F. Byrd, Dalton; N. J. Guier, Washington; J. M. Council, Americus; H. A. Petty, Dawson; J. T. Avret, Farmdale; G. E. Youmans, Adrian; J. Leonard Reuther, Sumner; W. T. McArthur, Sr., McGregor; E. T. Barnes, Dublin; Claude Eubank, Eastman; Fred W. Hodges, Oliver; W. J. Wade, Cutbert; W. J. Franklin, Zebulon; E. W. Childs, Omaha, and J. A. Bowers, Meigs.

President Conwell in speaking before the members and the board of directors, pointed out that the association had increased its fertilizer sales for this season, as against last year, and that during the past few weeks a number of larger growers who have never been in the association have signed for membership.

At the meetings of the members and directors the association contract which the member signs was so amended that a member delivering cotton to the association can name the day on which he desires his cotton sold. A number of important changes also were made in the by-laws of the association.

The newly elected directors of the association are N. M. Adams, Cartersville; W. M. Coile, Winterville, and Fred W. Hodges, Oliver.

MELIZA MOURNS LOSS OF PISTOL, WATCH, MONEY

Among other sad stories revealed on police reports Wednesday was this one:

Meliza Davis, of 145 Haynes street, wanted good luck, but she couldn't pay the wizard, the required $25. The wizard, a negro, then consented to perform the rites for nothing. Acquainted with brown liquid from a vial, Meliza was sent into an adjoining room while the negro wove the spell. She grew tired of waiting, investigated, and found that the wizard had departed and with his going a pistol, watch, some money and other valuables belonging to Meliza had disappeared.

COUNTY POLICEMAN ATTACKED BY SNAKE

County Policeman John McCrary was recovering Wednesday from effects of a snake bite received Tuesday in the woods back of his home in Buckhead. The officer shot the snake, which he believes was a copperhead, lured from winter quarters by the first warmth of spring. McCrary was bitten on Tuesday night, but prompt medical attention put him out of danger, according to members of his family. He is specially detailed to county charity cases.

AUDITOR'S REPORT SHOWS BIG GAINS IN AUTO TAG SALES

Sale of automobile license tags between January 1, 1928, and March 17, 1928, aggregated $3,190,398, a considerable increase over the amount sold for the corresponding period one year ago, according to a report of an audit of the books of the state motor vehicle department filed with Governor L. G. Hardman Wednesday by Sam J. Slate, state auditor.

In his report the auditor recommends that greater care be taken in the storage of tags, as the system now used is "careless," according to the auditor. He also recommends that the custom of selling tags out of their numerical order be discontinued as this complicates the system of records.

The auditor pointed out that an alleged shortage of $3,380 in the window department reported last year has not been paid. He also said alleged shortages of $414 and $1,783 reported in 1927 had not been paid. These shortages were reported to the Fulton county grand jury but that body, after investigating the case, returned no indictments as it was impossible to fix the blame on any one person.

FACE BADLY DISFIGURED Red Pimples Lasted Six Years. Cuticura Heals.

"My face was badly disfigured with blackheads and pimples. The pimples were hard, large and red, and festered and scaled over. They itched and burned so that they caused me to scratch, and scratching caused eruptions. I could not sleep well at night on account of the irritation. The trouble lasted about six years. I tried lots of different remedies without success. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in one week's time I found great relief. I continued using them and in four months I was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. C. S. Marks, R. 1, Tallapoosa, Ga.

CADMAN TO SPEAK AT DINNER TONIGHT

Dr. S. Parks Cadman, president of the Federal Council of Churches of America, and prominent churchman both in the United States and throughout the world, will address the Baptist Deacons' dinner at the Baptist tabernacle at 6:30 o'clock tonight, according to a message from Louie D. Newton, editor of The Christian Index, who is now in Athens attending the University of Georgia religious welfare conference, where Dr. Cadman is the principal speaker.

"We are particularly fortunate," Mr. Newton said, "to secure this remarkable religious leader for an address to our deacons Thursday evening. It comes about by the good fortune that he will catch an evening train in Atlanta and will come over by auto with me Thursday from Athens. I wish to urge upon all who will attend the dinner to be very prompt. Dr. Cadman will necessarily have to speak early in order to get his train for New York."

The dinner is one of a series which will be held throughout the year for fellowship and inspiration. The dinner held in January was addressed by Dr. Spright Dowell, president of Mercer university. Judge E. D. Thomas is president of the brotherhood. Charles W. Outlaw is the secretary. Mr. Newton will be the toastmaster tonight. Dr. W. H. Houghton and Judge Frank Jenkins will also speak tonight.

Dr. Cadman contributes a daily article to The Constitution, answering questions on religious matters.

ATLANTA CALLED MOST PROSPEROUS CITY IN GEORGIA

Transacting a volume of business 33 per cent above the average for 1920-24, an increase of 16 points over February, 1928, Atlanta for the sixth consecutive month was the most prosperous city, relatively, in Georgia, according to the report of the Standard Statistics Company of New York, one of the world's largest statistical organizations.

Conditions here should keep Atlanta's purchasing power at satisfactory levels, it was pointed out. The crop outlook is regarded as favorable. Iron and steel are expected to remain active at least another month, the building industry remains in good position, the lumber industry is on the up-grade, there is an increasing demand for confectionary and soft drinks, and the insurance business is in a healthy condition.

GERMAN SPINNERS HONORED AT LUNCHEON

Citing the importance of new outlets for cotton products and the discovery of new uses for cotton, Governor L. G. Hardman addressed a large gathering of textile men and representatives of various business interests, trade association secretaries and government officials, which met Wednesday noon at the chamber of commerce in honor of a delegation of leading cotton spinners from Germany.

The luncheon was held under the joint auspices of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and the Atlanta Foreign Trade club. Charles F. Hoke, president of the latter organization, presiding. George S. Harris, president of the Exposition Cotton mills, and one of the founders of the Cotton Textile Institute of America, served as toastmaster.

The governor, who is an active spinner himself, expressed keen interest in the visit of the German industrialists. He praised German scientific ability and pointed out that it was his belief that scientific research in the textile field offers the greatest hope for the future progress in the industry.

Efforts at Regulation.

"Many efforts have been made to regulate prices of cotton and cotton products," the governor declared, "but so far they have proved unsatisfactory. However, if we can find new uses for cotton, prices will take care of themselves."

Mr. Harris, in introducing the spinners, called attention to the remarkable growth in spinning which the industry has enjoyed in southern states since 1900, there being 5,000,000 spindles in existence at that time and 10,000,000 in 1925. Mr. Harris stated that it was his belief that the American people have always entertained a high regard for the Germans even though a battle line existed between us a few years ago and he was particularly pleased to see the interest and friendliness manifested by the visit of the German spinners.

Dr. Rolf Jaeger, German consul to Atlanta, spoke briefly along the lines of the interest which Germany is taking in the remarkable industrial development of the south. Following his remarks in English, Dr. Jaeger spoke in German to the visitors.

Theodor Schwartz, chairman of the Association of Rhenish Westphalian Cotton Spinners, responded in behalf of the spinners to the addresses of welcome. Mr. Schwartz, in his appreciation of the reception shown the party by the Atlanta committee, particularly grateful for the opportunity extended by Atlanta executives to view their plants in operation. He stated that he considered the presence of the governor of Georgia a distinct tribute of friendliness to Germany.

Horace Russell, vice president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, welcomed the party in behalf of the chamber and explained to the visitors how the chamber of commerce functioned in an American community in the upbuilding of every constructive factor. He pointed out particularly the interest which the industrial bureau of the Atlanta chamber had in the textile industry.

Robert Hecht, president of the international association, who was in charge of the party in Atlanta, addressed the luncheon both in English and German.

The German spinners arrived in Atlanta early Wednesday morning under the auspices of the United States department of agriculture, George A. Dunagin, district manager of the division of cotton marketing, in charge. They were met at the Terminal station by members of the local reception committee headed by Dr. Jaeger and were tendered breakfast at the Biltmore hotel by Walter Ward, district representative of the North German Lloyd steamship line.

At 9:15 they visited the duck mills at the federal prison, following which they inspected the compresses and warehouse facilities at Candler warehouse. The visitors then divided into two groups, one going to the Fulton Bag & Cotton mills and the other to the Exposition mills.

Following the luncheon the party visited the cotton exchange and then divided, several members going to the Atlanta Woolen mills, several to the Georgia Textile school, and others going on a tour of the residential district and Stone Mountain.

The party embarked for New Orleans at 5:45 Wednesday afternoon. Members of the party included Mr. and Mrs. Hans Adloff, Franz Beckmann, Heinz Baer, Theodor Goldmann, Hermann Haertel, Wilhelm Hageboeck, Paul Jackson, August Kuempfers, Direktor Kuehne, Bernard Laursen, Heinrich Pfennig, Georg Schmidt, Louis Schoeller, Theodor Schwartz, Carl Weyl and Helmut Thorey.

3 MONTHS' TERM GIVEN TO AUTOIST IN DEKALB CRASH

Charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, A. Oakes, of a Plum street, N. E. address, Wednesday was sentenced by Judge Frank Gaines in DeKalb county court to serve three months on a plea of guilty. Oakes was arrested by DeKalb County Officer W. A. Carroll early Wednesday morning following an accident at Ponce de Leon avenue and East Lake drive, in which he was alleged to have driven a rented automobile into the rear of a car driven by W. A. Jackson, motion picture operator at the DeKalb theater.

Oakes was driving a roadster and was accompanied by two other men on the way from Lawrenceville to Atlanta, it was said. Oakes and his companions were cut and bruised by glass from the broken windshield, while Jackson, whose car was driven off the road by the impact of the rear end collision was not injured, it was said.

Millions of Capital for Avondale Homes

Speeds Growth of this New Suburban City

THERE is nothing sentimental about the praise daily heaped on Avondale Estates. Outsiders appraise it coldly, with thoughts of profit, and stamp it with their unqualified approval.

What is more: they back their belief with their money.

Numbers of the largest loan companies in America, with hundreds of millions of dollars in capital, have scientifically appraised this $5,000,000 development, approved it and formally announced themselves in the market for 60 per cent loans in Avondale Estates.

That represents the maximum loan value on residential property. It puts Avondale Estates on a precise par with any other fine residential area, of any age whatever, in the whole Atlanta region.

The amount of such money, from conservative firms, for home construction in Avondale is practically unlimited.

That's how the nation's bankers feel about Avondale Estates. This makes it possible for owners of lots in Avondale to build their homes with a minimum cash outlay.

Vision Richly Rewarded

Many investors have exercised keen foresight and purchased lots and built homes in Avondale Estates. Values have enhanced amazingly, spurred on by the vast program of improvements which has surged forward and grown in magnitude and beauty as it progressed.

An investor in Avondale Estates a few days ago sold his original purchase for a clear profit of one hundred per cent.

There are scores of other notable examples, Avondale is now speeding forward to a new rise in values. Watch it grow.

Ask Any Avondale Resident

The joy of life they are finding will make it difficult for Avondale residents to refrain from sentiment—but they will tell you they have found their money's worth as they never dared hope to find it. They can't measure life like theirs in this matchless homeland, by a scale of dollars and cents, but having tasted its wholesome zest, they will tell you it is cheap at any price. They have all the advantages of luxurious country life—plus every metropolitan comfort and convenience.

Why is capital, always conservative,—so actively interested in Avondale Estates? Why are its residents so loud in their praise? The answer is quite simple:

Broad paved avenues, fringed by spreading shade trees, wind over these rolling acres, past incomparable sites that hold majestic homes. Flowering shrubs and evergreens grow in profusion. Thirty acres of parks and playground are a delight to young and old. A large lake for boating and fishing—a commodious swimming pool set in a grove of giant oaks—tennis courts—golf on the adjacent courses—every wholesome recreation for every age. There is a flourishing Old English business district that supplies every household need; a modern well-appointed school with accommodations for 350 pupils; a staff of teachers second to none—the Avondale P. T. A. sees to this. Dairies from which 30 pure-bred Jersey cows provide freshest milk and cream; nurseries where plants in astonishing variety grow by tens of thousands for the residents of Avondale. Everything, in short, that joyous life can ask.

All this—and the titanic program of development has really just begun!

The moderate prices will astound you.

You can own your home in Avondale—with all its remarkable features—for less than you pay in rent.

Outstanding New Features of AVONDALE'S Program

A large new lake nesting crystal clear between wooded slopes is scheduled for the year. Lake Miramar will be 1½ miles in circumference and only 1200 feet from the present beautiful Lake Avondale.

A new Elizabethan passenger station, designed to harmonize with the quaint Old English business district, will be built in the civic center.

Starting at the very entrance of Avondale—a double boulevard, studded with green parkways, will constitute a beautiful plaza 110 feet wide through the civic center.

Grading has begun on Memorial Drive, the new 60-foot formal boulevard, forming a magnificent approach to the Stone Mountain Memorial, and Atlanta's avenue to the East, running for a mile and a half through Avondale Estates.

The new Augusta Highway, linking Atlanta with Augusta and the Carolina line, traverses Avondale Estates. This grading is almost complete; paving will be finished this year.

Scores of new homes are definitely planned—many are now in course of construction.

These are but a few of the countless features of Avondale's immediate development program. Watch for further details.

STATE LEGIONNAIRES IN DRIVE FOR PEACE

Rome, Ga., April 18.—(AP)—Enrollment of all world war veterans in Georgia for the purpose of presenting a solid front to fight for permanent peace legislation is urged in a telegram just received at department headquarters of the American Legion here from national headquarters in Indianapolis.

Intensive efforts to have the Capper-Johnson bill, known as the universal draft measure, passed at this session of congress will be made, it was said, by Edward E. Spafford, national commander of the legion, upon the conclusion of his present airplane flight to 14 states. The tour is planned to end late in April, it was explained.

Contents of the telegram were: "As you know, Commander Spafford has been intensely interested in large national membership. When he returns here the last of April he will have completed his tour of departments, and we wish to surprise and welcome him with unprecedented membership."

"Please urge the posts of your department to accomplish this record and forward every possible membership by then."

"Such record will give him the solid, united backing of the field and be an inspiration in concentrating his efforts at this most vital period on our peace legislation program as embodied in the universal draft bill now before congress."

Commander Spafford's flight, which is covering 14 western states, followed an extensive trip through the south, legion officials said, explaining that his tour of the entire country will be completed when the present journey ends.

"Disturbed Sleep"

Is Nature's Warning of Danger Ahead.
A Healthy Bladder Does Not Act at Night.

Mrs. J. N. Alexander, Sugden, Okla., writes: "For twenty years I was troubled with burning and bladder aching ten to fifteen times every night. I tried many remedies but had no relief until I began Keller's Lithiated Buchu. I now sleep all night without getting up. I am willing to help others by telling or writing my full experience."

Lithiated Buchu acts on the bladder as a powerful diuretic. Drives out foreign poisons and restores normal action. This relieved the irritation that causes "getting up" at night. The tablets cost each at all drug stores. Keller Laboratories, Mechanicsville, Ohio, or locally at Jacobs Pharmacy Co., 24 stores in Atlanta.—(adv.)

EMORY JUNIOR DRIVE MOVES INTO DEKALB

Oxford, Ga., April 18.—(Special.) The Emory college junior campaign to raise $100,000 in the bounds of the Oxford district moved into DeKalb and Rockdale counties this week.

This is a new departure and brings the organization of the campaign to complete form, covering the entire Oxford district area.

In these two counties are located Lithonia and Conyers stations, and the Lithonia and Salem circuits, together with Milledgeville church in the Milledgeville and Covington mills church.

The pastors of these churches are the Revs. W. S. Norton, J. R. Jordan, W. A. Langley, N. P. Manning and Foster Young and both churches and pastors will be strongly enlisted in this effort, although citizens of other denominations will, as elsewhere, serve on the committee and no doubt manifest a liberal spirit as to contributions.

Rev. A. W. Rees, principal of Emory university academy, is in charge of the campaign and expresses gratification at this concluding phase of it in the prospect of organizing in DeKalb and Rockdale counties.

The campaign, where already organized, as in Newton county, Jasper, Jones, Baldwin and Putnam counties, is going forward with commendable activities. Particularly encouraging reports are just now coming in from Jasper county, according to those in charge. At Shady Dale, Hillsboro, Monticello and other points in this county, thoroughly organized committees are showing lively interest. For example, one single contribution in the form of a $500 check was recently reported by one of the committees at work in Monticello.

At Social Circle and other points in Walton county, embraced in the Oxford district, committees under Professor Herndon will begin their canvassing for Emory college junior endowment this week. The headquarters management of the drive is optimistic of its issue.

CHICAGO PITCHER DUBIOUS OF NEWS OF RICH LEGACY

Chicago, April 16.—(AP)—Percy Lee Jones, Chicago Cubs hurler, who yesterday thought himself $500,000 richer today is not so sure that his bank account has taken a sudden jump upwards.

Jones received word through a relative in St. Louis that he was to receive the estate of a great-grandfather valued at a half million dollars due to some flaw in drawing up the will. However, the Chicago southpaw has not received any word of his newly acquired fortune, and knows of no relative living in Georgia.

"It may all be true," said Percy, "but it will be years before I get it and I am not building any airships."

Jones said that he told his wife and that she told someone else and the first thing he knew the story was in the newspapers.

"They may be spoofing me for all I know."

PLAINVILLE COMPANY OPENS OFFICES HERE

Due to increased building activity and general prosperity as indicated in improved building conditions, the Plainville Brick company, of Plainville, Ga., has opened Atlanta office on the main floor of the Bona Allen building, where the company will maintain its plant representatives and display rooms.

It was pointed out by the management that Georgia clay and shale are above the average in the adaptability to the manufacture of artistic and serviceable brick. It is said that the Plainville Brick company, which is located in the midst of one of Georgia's finest shale bank deposits, is the most modern brick plant in the south.

Army Orders

Major Ward E. Durrell, third coast artillery, stationed at Fort Rosecrans, Calif., has been ordered to report to Major General Richmond P. Davis, fourth corps area commander, for duty in connection with the T. C. activities. Major Durrell will leave his present station in time to sail from San Francisco about June 6, via the Panama canal, for New York.

Second Lieutenant Marvin V. Peck, infantry, for the past year and seven months on duty with the twenty-second infantry, at Fort McPherson, has received orders detailing him to foreign service in the Hawaiian Islands. He leaves for New York in time to sail about September 5, via the Panama canal.

State Farm Use In Misdemeanor Cases Protested

Georgia's practice of sending misdemeanor prisoners from the various counties to serve their terms at the state prison farm was assailed as a burdensome and unnecessary expense to the state, a handicap to the work of the prison commission, and the cause of a "very crowded and unprofitable condition" at the farm, in an audit of the prison commission filed this week with Governor Hardman by State Auditor Sam J. Slate.

Pointing out that the transportation of prisoners cost the state $6,633.14 last year, the auditor said: "The counties send their prisoners to the farm and transportation to the amount of three and four railroad fares from point of sentence to the farm has to be paid. Quite often the sentence of a misdemeanor is 30, 60, 90 days and six months."

Under a ruling by the attorney general these prisoners have to be kept at the farm and not assigned to the highways. This makes the condition at the farm very crowded and unprofitable, for the present method of the farm does not permit the use of so many prisoners in a gainful way. Some legislative relief should be had from this condition."

Reviewing the fiscal affairs of the prison commission for the year 1927, the auditor reported receipts of $134,130.45 and disbursements of $128,585.57, leaving a balance at the year's end amounting to $5,544.88. Maintenance of the state farm was shown to have cost $94,475.14 for the year.

SAVANNAH GIRL BUYS AIRPLANE; WILL BUY AGAIN

Melbourne, Fla., April 18.—(AP)—Miss Marie Woolsey, of Savannah, Ga., narrowly escaped death today when an airplane she had just purchased and in which she was taking a flying lesson, crashed to earth.

Neither Barber nor Albert Culler, Bob Greer and "Red" Harrow having gained their freedom by aiding the state and testifying in the case. Pure water supply in the U. S. A. was followed by temperance movements and finally prohibition.

Although the plane was practically destroyed, Miss Woolsey was unharmed by the accident, announcing that she would leave this afternoon to purchase another plane.

The accident was said to have been caused by a stalling engine.

Druggist's Formula Brings Quick Relief to Pain Sufferers

Answering the plea of sufferers from headache and nerve pains for a safe preparation that would stop pain almost instantly, Dr. T. M. Stanback, a prominent North Carolina pharmacist, developed this scientific formula.

Right of Senate To Probe Cuban Affairs Doubted

Washington, April 18.—(AP)—The right of the United States senate to conduct an investigation into the internal affairs of Cuba was challenged today by Dr. Orestes Ferrara, Cuban ambassador, who replied to charges related in a resolution by Senator Shipstead, farmer-labor, Minnesota.

In the resolution, introduced yesterday, Senator Shipstead asked that an investigation be made to determine whether the rights and property of United States citizens in Cuba are being fully protected under the Platt amendment.

"The senate is free to perform its duties in its own land as it may see fit," Ambassador Ferrara said, "but doubtless it will always respect the rights of other nations and the traditional ties of friendship which Cuba has never maintained and demonstrated at the last Pan-American conference at Havana. Nevertheless, an investigation by the United States could not be carried out in Cuban territory."

ARCTIC MAIL MEN RECEIVE REWARDS

Washington, April 18.—(AP)—The thermometer stood at 50 below zero. But Wilbur Jewell merely pulled down his ear muffs tighter and set out from Chatanika, Alaska, to deliver letters of Christmas greetings to the people of Circle. Before he got there he had severely frozen his hands and feet.

Sitting in her living room by the fire in a comfortable home in Norwalk, Conn., a woman read in the newspaper about Jewell's sacrifice and decided he ought to be rewarded.

Then, some time later, she also read about Maurice O'Leary, another Alaskan carrier of mails; how he froze his hands and feet rescuing his horse which broke through the ice while they were making their lonely route, and had to have some of his fingers amputated.

And the story of Bert Thorson also moved her. Thorson battled blizzard sweep plains to deliver his mail to two arctic outposts.

So this Connecticut woman sent Postmaster General New a check for $250 with a letter containing their sentiments. Mr. New has mailed the check to Alaska to be divided among the three carriers. The name of the donor will not be made public.

DR. VAUGHAN QUILTS RACE FOR COUNCIL

Dr. C. J. Vaughan, veteran member of city council from the fourth ward, will retire from politics at the end of his present term and although a group of his friends posted his entrance fee and qualified him to make the race for reelection subject to the city democratic primary of June 6, ill health will make it impossible for him to continue his activities in council, he announced Wednesday.

During his service in council Dr. Vaughan has served on practically every important committee of council, and at the present time is chairman of the charter revision body and a member of the police and other important committees.

While Dr. Vaughan was at Hot Springs for his health, a group of his friends paid his entrance fee, and announced he would make the race. On his return he felt his physical condition would not permit him to longer serve, and has announced his withdrawal.

"I wish to thank my friends for their confidence and liberality in taking the initiative while I was away from the city," Dr. Vaughan said. "If my health warranted it, I would deem it a privilege to continue to serve the people of my ward, but feel that I could not do justice to the position. I, therefore, have decided to leave the field open."

At the same time that Dr. Vaughan announced his withdrawal, F. A. Hollingsworth qualified as a candidate for the position thus left vacant.

AVIATION TO BRING NEW CIVILIZATION, SAYS ACE

fact that aviation is firmly established. Captain Rickenbacker told the Atlanta Safety Council at its luncheon in the Ansley hotel civic room. "They keep talking about what it may do in the future when flying is developed. Flying is already developed. A network of air lines now covers this country and the countries of Europe. Hundreds of tons of mail go by air every week. Big business men facing the vital necessity of saving time as its passengers every day.

"Aviation is already here. It's here to stay, and it will grow by tremendous strides. Business competition will give it development fresh impetus every day. It's a factor that even now is necessary in the life of any progressive business establishment that plans to live and expand."

Looking into the future, Rickenbacker saw aviation as a giant in only a few short years.

"Today we have 24,000,000 motor cars in the United States," he said. "In ten years, by 1935, we'll have 50,000,000 cars for aviation won't hurt the automobile. It will help it. But I believe that in 25 years the aviation industry will be larger than the automobile industry. It will be the biggest industry in the world; the largest the world has ever known."

Marvels of Future.

"Folk talk about marvellous inventions of the past quarter of a century. The next 25 years will be ten times as productive, ten times as progressive, ten times as marvellous in every sense of the word. Just as present the United States is actually using only about one-third of its soil, the other two-thirds is idle. Aviation is going to people these idle lands and put them to work. It is going to bring the most remote and inaccessible place in just a few hours' ride of some great center of population.

"Let me draw you a picture of conditions as they will be ten years from now. At that time giant dirigibles bigger than any ocean liner that ever sailed will ply on regular routes in every direction across this and other continents. They will be the freight-haulers of the day. Taking Atlanta as a typical city, let us say that 10 years from now Atlanta will be the base for small dirigibles, many no larger than what we now consider to be the monster Los Angeles dirigible. These small dirigibles from Atlanta will fly to meet the gigantic freight dirigibles a hundred miles north of the city. So vast will these freight haulers be that the little dirigibles will light on their decks, discharge freight to other points and take on a cargo of freight consigned to Atlanta. Then the little dirigibles will hop off the deck of the big dirigibles and fly back to Atlanta.

"The big fellows probably won't stop at all. Time will be vital thing then; every second saved will be worth gold. Maybe the big fliers will slow down to 50 miles an hour and the little fellows will anchor on their decks, but always they will be on the move.

To Circle Globe.

"In time—and in a short time—monster passenger and freight air liners will go entirely around the globe without stopping and will keep going round and round. The plane of today is a kite compared to the plane of tomorrow. Just as the dirigible will be the freight-carrier, the speedier plane will come in for general short-distance use. The sky will be black with them, going everywhere on air lanes that are miles wide on every sort of mission. And above or under them will be the giant dirigibles hauling the world's goods and doing the heavy work."

Captain Rickenbacker believes that railroad steam lines will pass into the limbo of forgotten things and that all passenger and much of the freight traffic of the seas will go to the air. Railroads everywhere are surveying their lines and freight terminals and yards with a view to taking to the air when the proper time comes, he said. "And there's another mighty force that is going to help the airplane forward," he continued. "That's television, which I'm closely in touch. Already it has made great strides. It has leaped the ocean and spanned the continent. It has even been successful in transmission of colors."

Effect of Television.

"In this new era of aerial transportation that I have just pictured television will be a great factor. Merchants will buy their goods after looking at them on television. They will pay for them with checks transmitted by television and cashable at remote points a few minutes after they are signed. They will also be able to see the mails work without interruption. The new era of radio and television and air transportation will save billions for merchants. They will save for the smaller and freer and more fashionable stocks ten times while they are turning stocks over once now. The evil of obsolescence of inventory will be entirely eliminated.

"Television, radio and the air liner will do all this. They will make it possible for the merchant to show a customer in Atlanta the television picture of a new Paris hat and order it and pay for it by radio and television instantly. He will receive the hat in time for her to wear it to a dance the next night.

"Every city will be a port on the ocean of the air, the greatest sea the world has ever known, and almost a limitless one. Television sets will be as common as telephones are today; radio will be the universal method of communication. And the planes that ply the air lines will be safer than trains and steamers of today. That's how the future looks to me."

Other Side of Picture.

Upon the present general opinion Captain Rickenbacker declared, lies the responsibility of turning aviation into peaceful, helpful channels that will result in unprecedented earnings of today. Dollars in reclamation of new lands and in the uplift of all mankind. But there was another side to the picture.

"If war comes when this great weapon is perfected," he said, "it will literally wreck the globe. There will be no battle fronts in the air. Every man, woman and child will be a combatant, and the battles will wage over the home."

"To future wars—if they are allowed to develop and are not suppressed—the monster air liners will take onto their decks swarms of airplanes and go to sea. Arrived at the destination, they will turn loose their weapons on a mission of annihilation, and when this is completed the planes will swoop back to the nest, reloaded and ready for another raid.

"New explosives already have been perfected that will detonate on the earth. There's a new bomb that, if dropped on Atlanta would shake down every building at the first explosion. There's a new gas, developed in the close of the last war, that will not only kill human and animal and vegetable life but make it impossible for things to grow in the soil for some time to come."

Must Outlaw War.

"There will be lenses yards wide and tons in weight that will center the sun's rays and burn up cities hundreds of miles away. There are other threats that promise utter ruin if coupled with aviation in warfare. They make it necessary for the human race to bar wars forever and turn into the paths of permanent peace."

Captain Rickenbacker spent a busy day in Atlanta Wednesday. Arriving early in the morning from Birmingham, he was tendered a breakfast at the Biltmore hotel by the local Cadillac organization and later inspected the Candler field with Alderman W. B. Hartsfield and Milton Dargatz, Jr., president of the chamber of commerce.

In the afternoon he conferred with Clyde K. Byfield, president of the Cadillac Company of Atlanta, and other Cadillac officials. Wednesday night he was guest of honor at a big banquet of Cadillac men from throughout this territory at the Biltmore hotel.

"Your flying field here is a splendid one," he said following his tour of inspection. "But don't make the mistake of believing you've done a good job and stop. The job has just begun, and Atlanta by all means should keep pace with the development of aircraft. Just as this city now is the hub of railroad transportation in the southeast, so it should be the hub of the air-transport of Dixie in the future. It is vital that you build to this end."

CHASE GETS CHARGE IN OIL PROBE

might be able to throw some light on contributions made there, as he was in charge of the situation during the years under consideration—1920 to 1924.

During his long stay in the witness chair, Chase, who was subpoenaed to day as a government witness in the Sinclair oil conspiracy trial in progress here, was vigorously cross-examined by Senator Walsh, of Montana, the committee's prosecutor; Senator Pittman, Senator Wagner, democrat, New York, and Chairman Nye.

At times the witness professed an inability to recall details but under constant hammering from the senators he did recall that he knew all about the transaction Fall had with Doherty and Sinclair. He said he had not intended to tell the committee when he was here late in 1925 anything about the Sinclair payment to Fall for a third interest in the Tres Ritos Land and Cattle company.

When Fall sent Chase to Washington to appear on his behalf, the witness said he was instructed to proceed first to Cleveland and in an effort to have Prime McKinney, of that city, say that he had arranged to loan Fall $100,000. McKinney refused and then Chase came on here and held his conference with Zevely.

After McKinney's refusal, he went on, Fall decided to come to Washington himself, which he did, but like his son-in-law, he also "ducked" the committee at that time and when he finally did appear months later, he refused to testify on ground of possible self-incrimination.

Chase freely conceded that Fall was very anxious to stop the investigation and after McKinney's refusal, Fall finally succeeded in inducing Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher, to say that he had advanced the funds used to enlarge the holdings of the Tres Ritos company.

As to his "instructions" from Fall when he set out from El Paso for Washington with the intention of facing the investigators, Chase said there was only a "very brief conversation" and he knew all about Fall's transactions and so did not need to have detailed instructions.

as in complete darkness due to damage to the electric works and it was feared there had been a large loss of life, but as a consequence of the earthquake nothing could be ascertained.

At Sofia three distinct shocks were felt, the first at 9:25 p. m. and two of lesser intensity immediately afterward. Inhabitants of the city immediately rushed into the streets in great terror. Most of the city's population was spending the night in the streets, fearing to re-enter their homes. A check on damage was being made.

From Haskovo reports were received of considerable damage, but details were lacking. It appeared that the shocks were centered about the Philippopolis district with the entire town badly shaken. Philippopolis and Tchipran badly shaken.

Philippopolis, a city of 84,891 population, was almost entirely destroyed by an earthquake in 1918. Sofia, the capital of Bulgaria, is a city of 213,120 population. The Tchipran area was shaken by a quake last week, but it was of less intensity.

into the path of the car and I was unable to stop my car in time."

Marks on the street car rails showed he had applied the air brakes of the "one-man" car as tightly as possible and had used the sand boxes to distribute sand on the tracks and assist in stopping. Witnesses estimated that the car probably was traveling about 15 miles an hour.

The child's father is employed in the bookkeeping department of the Atlanta Trust company.

So badly was the body mangled and so entangled was it in the trucks and other appliances of the front trucks, that large jacks and workmen were employed to extricate it.

The body was carried to the funeral parlors of Sam R. Greenberg and company in the Greenberg ambulance, and will be sent this morning to Talladega, Ala., for funeral services.

AMOROUS LAYS COTTON CRISIS TO TRADE LAWS

that a slowing up of cotton futures trading to the speed of "a sane market" might be accomplished.

In answer to a question from the New York senator, Smith said his plan if he finally decided to present it would, of course, be applicable to all cotton exchanges and "not make fish of one and fowl of another."

Not Matter of Law

Hubbard said he "had no objection" to further government regulation of cotton trading, provided that supervision was exercised through control committees of the exchange themselves and also provided, as to limiting the amount of hedging transactions in any one future position in which any firm or interest could engage, that the limit itself was not made a matter of law.

It must be flexible and ready of quick adjustment to meet varying conditions by action of the exchange control group, he argued.

Amorous leveled his guns largely at the crop and other cotton estimates of the department of agriculture. That department, he said, had never made an accurate forecast in its history. He also challenged "the integrity of the sources" of either government or private estimates on annual cotton carry-over, reciting an instance of his own experience as a former warehouse head when 2,000 bales, owing to a divided mill merchant and storage interest, went into the government calculation as 6,000.

Where Rigging Begins

"The rigging of the cotton market begins right there," Amorous declared. "These reports are robbing farmers of their homes and lands."

Amorous presented a resolution from the southern cotton growers asking for establishment of government-licensed cotton warehouses, with bonded cotton graders from which farmers could get fearfully guaranteed storage receipts that showed the true weight, staple, charge and type of bales placed in storage.

HALL-MILLS MURDERS BARED BY CONFESSION

The story, following a restless night in his cell, was poured out to the county attorney, after Allen had called W. W. Hitchen, night jailer, to his cell to tell him "I'm tired of this kind of living and I'm going to cough up the whole works."

Allen said he would waive extradition to New Jersey.

SCOUT 'CONFESSION' AT SOMERVILLE

Somerville, N. J., April 15.—(AP)—New Jersey authorities were declined to take seriously the reported confession of Edwin F. Allen, held in jail in El Reno, Okla., to the murders of the Rev. Edward Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, near here, on September 14, 1922.

Prosecutor Francis L. Bergen, of Somerset county, "several days ago received a letter written by Andrew Jenkins, a cell mate of Allen, saying that the latter had admitted the slaying of his victims. That letter was supplemented by a telegram from Sheriff T. C. Shacklett that a confession had been obtained from Allen."

Bergen said he would conduct a thorough investigation as a matter of course.

The telegram said Allen confessed to the murders "committed in 1921," which authorities said was an indication that the prisoner was drawing on his imagination. Another discrepancy pointed out was the naming of "Plum Lane" where the bodies were left. The bodies were found in an unnamed pathway off De Russey's lane.

DEMOCRAT LEADERS FORESEE WET ISSUE

ward the nomination because the democratic masses in the north and east are aligned behind him. These voters are wet. They are wet in principle and they are wet in practice," and that "there is no outstanding the Smith candidacy from the fight on Volsteadism, Ku Kluxism, ancestor worship and social discrimination."

And then, to the amazement of party leaders here who have been rather complaisant toward Smith's candidacy, the World boldly declares that "he is irrevocably a wet and as a wet he will inevitably run." That is the issue he represents "and is" the one popular issue on which he can really challenge the republicans.

The view is held here that this editorial, coming in the chief New York newspaper of the Smith following, after the formal presentation of him by the democratic executive committee of his state on yesterday, forecasts with authority Smith's attitude as a candidate.

Several of the most eminent democratic leaders, who do not consent now to be personally quoted, said today of the World editorial—"It projects the issue for the Houston convention." They say it will be impossible now to keep the wet and dry issue out of the deliberations at Houston and the party will be compelled to decide whether it will go to the country challenging the whole prohibition policy, or upholding it?

On the other hand the Smith leaders, such as Senators Copeland, Wagner, Edwards, Bruce and Hawes in the senate, there pleasure what the World's statement of the situation. They say the prohibition issue must be carried to the national electorate in some way and at some time for a showdown; that there is no better time ahead than now and no leader who can make the fight on Volsteadism with such character and popular favor as Governor Smith. So they welcome the chance to nominate him and thereby fix the national status of the party as the wet party of the country.

Wets Get Recruits.

Some of the Smith party are agreed with the New York World that "on a program to reform prohibition he would have an issue in which not only the Smith democrats, but millions of important republicans passionately believe."

When asked about the south these men say "Smith can win without the south. The south is a lost cause. The southern democrats want offices and liquor as badly as those of the east and will be found voting for Smith, just then there are no accustomed to do whoever is on the democratic ticket."

The most conservative men of prominence were deeply disturbed by the World editorial. If it truly represents Smith and his followers they foresee another cyclonic convulsion at Houston and the strong probability of a split party at the end of it.

The repercussions from the democratic press of the country, which is a matter of strained anxiety by the party leaders here, if Governor Smith realizes the world's forecast and the democratic sentiment seems to be with him, then there will be no wet and dry issue in the presidential campaign.

VOTES TO OVERRIDE FLOOD VETO CLAIMED

of the house flood committee, however, was not present. Speaker Longworth, Chairman Madden, and the president of the committee, and Chairman Smeal of the rules committee, attended.

President Coolidge was mentioned in house flood debate for the first time when Representative Davenport, New York, republican, opposing the bill, said he would not name the president for vetoing it. Others who spoke against the bill included La Guardia, New York, republican; Shalenger, Nebraska, democrat, and Kopp, Iowa, republican.

T. J. Freeman, New Orleans, representing the Texas Pacific railroad, discussed flood control with President Coolidge. He said the railroads were satisfied with the bill so far as it affected their interests. Senators Sackett, Kentucky, republican, and Hansdell, Louisiana, democrat, also conferred with the president.

Senator Hawes, Missouri, democrat, declared in a statement it was untrue that banks, railroad companies and lumber companies have any special interest in this legislation.

He cited the statement of Representative Fear in the house that land owned by a timber company in one proposed spillway would cost $75 an acre.

As soon as the owners of the land could be reached they immediately answered his statement by saying they would be glad to sell this property for from $5 to $10 an acre. Hawes said "This is characteristic of the misrepresentation employed."

Instantly Killed.

Johnson City, Tenn., April 15.—(AP)—A man losing control of his roadster when it struck a dip in the pavement, Bush Campbell, 32, was instantly killed here this afternoon. His skull was fractured. Witnesses said he was driving rapidly and alone at the time of the accident. Campbell is survived by his widow and one child.

'Liberal Interpretation' Of Parking Laws Pledged

Following announcement Wednesday by Chief of Police James L. Beavers that new non-parking ordinances, passed Monday by city council, would be placed in effect as soon as practicable, C. V. Hohenstein, executive secretary of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association, issued a statement in which he declared officials have promised a "liberal interpretation" of the drastic enactment, permitting shoppers to transact business in the central business district.

Mr. Hohenstein said he interviewed Councilman Harry York, of the sixth ward, who is chairman of the traffic committee of city council, and Mayor L. N. Ragsdale concerning the ordinances before they were approved by the mayor or council, and that they agreed that shoppers should be permitted to "transact immediate business" but that they who heretofore have used the streets for garages will be barred from the streets during construction of the Pryor street and Central avenue viaducts.

Chief Beavers also was interviewed by Mr. Hohenstein concerning enforcement of the ordinances.

"As a result of my conference with these city officials, I understand that it is not the purpose and intent of the ordinance to establish absolutely rigid, invariable non-parking regulations," Mr. Hohenstein said.

"The ordinances will be reasonably and liberally interpreted so as to apply in a way that will enable those having immediate business in the central business district to transact such business, and to enable shoppers having immediate purchases to make, to do so within a period of say not more than 15 minutes. The ordinances, however, will be rigidly enforced so as to eliminate from the streets those who have been using the streets practically as garages for periods running from an hour to practically all day parking."

"If the streets can be cleared of those who have been abusing the parking privileges and have been making garages out of the streets, it will be a tremendous improvement in the situation. Chief Beavers has indicated his intention of detailing for the work of enforcing the ordinance a number of his most experienced, intelligent men, capable of exercising discretion under all circumstances."

All Day Parkers Barred.

"It is my understanding that every effort will be made by city officials not to seriously interfere with the transaction of business by the merchants and their customers, and every possible effort will be put forth to see that the all day parkers and others who use the streets as garages for extended lengths of time be made to understand that they can no longer do so, and must leave the streets free for those who want to come in, transact immediate business, and get out. Our association and its members connected with it will do everything in their power to cooperate with the city officials in the enforcement of these ends," because they feel it is for the good of the city and for all interests involved.

The new ordinance prohibits parking from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m. on the following streets: Peachtree and Whitehall streets, from Pryor to Mitchell; Broad street, from Peachtree to Mitchell; Pryor street, from Peachtree to Mitchell; Mitchell street, from Spring to Washington; Hunter street, from Broad to Whitehall; Parking on Marietta street, from Broad to Five Points, is limited to ten minutes.

BROTHER DEBATERS WIN FOR EMORY

Emory university's brother-debaters, Glenn and Robert Elliott, of Norcross, received the unanimous decision of the judges in the annual debate between Emory and Duke university Wednesday night in the theology chapel.

The affirmative of the subject, "Resolved: That the United States should cease to protect by force of arms capital invested in foreign countries except after formal declaration of war," was upheld by the Duke team, composed of Paul Erwin and Jennings Kim. The Elliott brothers championed the negative side.

Solicitor John A. Boykin, Reuben P. Arnold and B. S. Barker, secretary of the chamber of commerce, were the judges. Dr. Robert C. Rhodes, head of the biology department at Emory, acted as chairman.

APARTMENT HOUSES SEEKING CHANGE IN SANITARY TAX

A recommendation asking that apartment houses be put on the same basis as hotels in assessing the city sanitary taxes will be introduced in council at its next meeting by Alderman Claude L. Ashley, of the fourth ward.

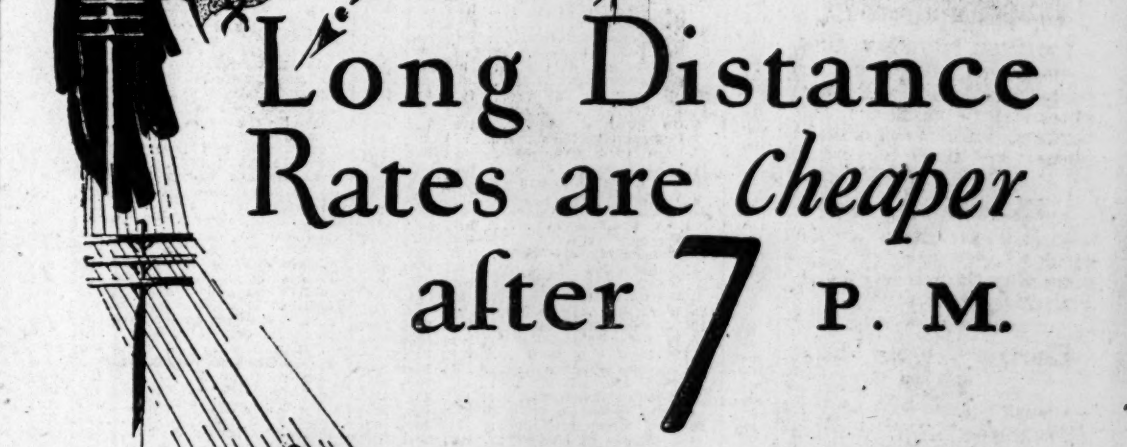

Apartment owners have registered considerable complaint, their claim being that they are assessed $3 sanitary tax on each apartment in a building, and that this puts an unjust burden on apartment owners.

Under Mr. Ashley's amendment, apartment houses would be assessed the same as downtown hotels, on the basis of front footage, instead of the number of apartments.

PROBABLY the best time in which to make a long distance station-to-station telephone call is during the 7 to 8:30 P. M. reduction period. . . . For one thing the charges are about twenty-five per cent less than the day rates for this class of service. . . . Connections are usually established very quickly because the lines are not apt to be crowded as they are after 8:30 P. M. when there is a still further reduction in rates.

Call by Number

To make a station-to-station call ask to be connected with a certain telephone, and do not ask the operator for an individual. To save time place the call by number whenever possible.

Youngsters usually get dandruff at school; promiscuous use of combs, towels, etc., brings it on. At the first sign of it, go after it with Listerine. You simply douse on full strength and massage the scalp vigorously. Keep the treatment up systematically. Unless the case is a very serious one, requiring the attention of a physician, you will note improvement within ten days. Lambert Pharmaceutical Company, St. Louis, Missouri, U. S. A.

At times the witness professed an inability to recall details but under constant hammering from the senators he did recall that he knew all about the transaction Fall had with Doherty and Sinclair. He said he had not intended to tell the committee when he was here late in 1925 anything about the Sinclair payment to Fall for a third interest in the Tres Ritos Land and Cattle company.

When Fall sent Chase to Washington to appear on his behalf, the witness said he was instructed to proceed first to Cleveland and in an effort to have Prime McKinney, of that city, say that he had arranged to loan Fall $100,000. McKinney refused and then Chase came on here and held his conference with Zevely.

After McKinney's refusal, he went on, Fall decided to come to Washington himself, which he did, but like his son-in-law, he also "ducked" the committee at that time and when he finally did appear months later, he refused to testify on ground of possible self-incrimination.

Chase freely conceded that Fall was very anxious to stop the investigation and after McKinney's refusal, Fall finally succeeded in inducing Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher, to say that he had advanced the funds used to enlarge the holdings of the Tres Ritos company.

As to his "instructions" from Fall when he set out from El Paso for Washington with the intention of facing the investigators, Chase said there was only a "very brief conversation" and he knew all about Fall's transactions and so did not need to have detailed instructions.

Characterized by beauty and elegance was the marriage of Miss Kathleen Keeney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Gratton Keeney, and Slater Eugene Marshall, which was solemnized Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, with a nuptial mass at the Church of the Immaculate Conception. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Joseph V. Abbott in the presence of a large assembly of relatives and friends.

The main altar of the church was banked with palms interspersed with vases of Easter lilies. Preceding the ceremony an appropriate program of nuptial music was rendered by Miss Rosina Asmus, organist. The bride party entered to the strains of the wedding march from "Lohengrin" and Mendelssohn's Wedding March was used for the recessional.

The bridesmaids, Miss Mildred LaHatte and Miss Frances Marshall, sister of the groom, wore becoming models of georgette and lace, fashioned alike in the pastel shades with satin slippers to match. The crystal clear color tells how good it is

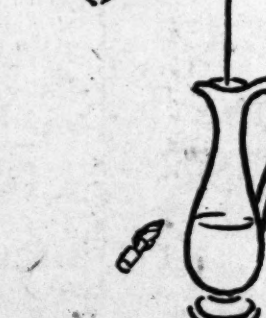

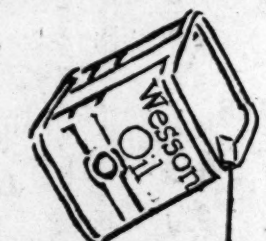

"You can tell how good anything is to eat, by its color"... A rule of thumb test, perhaps, but what housewife doesn't instinctively apply it?

Certainly, it is one of the reasons why Wesson Oil has become such a general favorite for salad dressing. The crystal clear, pale straw color of it tells you instantly what it is—a notably pure and wholesome salad oil.

Indeed, Wesson Oil is made from the finest oil obtainable and refined until just the pure nourishing food part of it is left. It's so good to eat that you can use it plain, if you like, on salad or vegetables... And it is exquisitely delicate in flavor.

Of course, it makes quite the most delicious French Dressing imaginable. And blends perfectly with those other ingredients that go to make this delightful dressing so piquant an addition to your salad...

Incidentally, thousands of modern women are using Wesson Oil for frying and for baking. It's very convenient—and you can easily understand why it makes food taste better.

High-Flying Leghorn At Grady Hospital Lays Its Eggs in Tree

The old gag about "Why does a chicken cross the road?" gave place to a new one Wednesday. The latest chicken story involves a hen in the Grady hospital yard which insists on making its nest and laying eggs in the hollow of a tree, a good distance higher than the average hen ever thinks of flying, much less laying.

The hen flies to the top of an automobile parked under the tree, and thence to its nest, it was said. The problem worrying Grady hospital officials is that of just how the bird is going to reach the ground when they hatch out.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

THE HOWLER OF THE JUNGLE BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Bad reputations oft are found To rest on nothing more than sound. Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit and Bobby Coon and Prickly Porky the Porcupine demanded that Scrapper the Kingbird tell them about the Howler of the Jungle. "Way down in the Tropics. It was queer to see Prickly Porky taking an interest in anything except the next mouthful of food. You know Prickly Porky seldom pays any attention to anything excepting his stomach. But some of the visitors who had come down from the Far North during the severe winters, had told him of Howler the Wolf, so he was interested right away when Scrapper mentioned the Black Howler who lived in the Jungle.

"You say that Howler the Wolf and this Black Howler have mentioned are not related at all," said Peter Rabbit. "If that is the case, I suppose they don't look at all alike."

Scrapper chuckled. "I don't know whether or not to tell you about Black Howler," said he. "I know absolutely that you are not going to believe me, and I don't like to talk to people who won't believe what I say."

"Of course, we'll believe you," declared Bobby Coon stoutly. "Haven't I believed you so far, even when you have told me of relatives I didn't know lived and that don't look the least bit like me?"

Scrapper nodded. "Yes, Bobby," said he. "You have surprised me. Really, you have surprised me. And everything I have told you is true. But I am really afraid to tell you about Black Howler, the howler of the Jungle, because I know how very hard it is going to be for you to believe. You never have seen anybody who looks the least bit like that fellow."

CHARLTON COUNTY FARMERS ADOPT ORGANIZED PLAN

Folkston, Ga., April 18.—(Special.) Farmers of Charlton county Tuesday night adopted a plan of organization. The latest of Farm Agent Hursley here and heard interesting talks on full trucking, delivered by James Moody of Donaldsonville.

The speaker urged the farmers to embrace cooperative plans of farming and trucking, declaring that such a method was the only one that would prove successful to growers of this region.

Following the address of Mr. Moody a cooperative association was organized with Dr. A. D. Williams as president, and B. B. Gowen, E. C. Kennison, H. P. Bryant, Grady Gibson as a board of directors. Sixteen members were enrolled at the meeting and the assembly indicated their keen enthusiasm over the cooperative idea.

"He has four legs, hasn't he?" demanded Bobby.

"Yes," replied Scrapper, "he has four legs."

"And I suppose he has a tail," spoke up Peter Rabbit.

"Certainly," replied Scrapper. "He has a wonderful tail. My goodness, how he can use that tail!"

Peter was all interested at once. He always is interested in tails. He had opened his mouth to ask another question regarding that tail when Bobby Coon spoke.

"Well," said Bobby testily, "if he's got four legs and a tail, what is there about him that is going to make it so hard for us to believe what you tell us? Hasn't he a fur coat?"

"Certainly," replied Scrapper, "he has a fur coat. You didn't think he

"Of course, I'll believe you," declared Bobby Coon stoutly.

"I thought perhaps he didn't have any at all," replied Bobby. "Now what is all this mystery about? What is it that is going to be so hard for us to believe?"

"Well, I'll tell you," replied Scrapper. "Black Howler looks a whole lot like one of these two-legged creatures called men. Of course, he isn't as big as a man by a great deal. Just the same, he looks a whole lot like one."

Peter looked at Bobby Coon, Bobby Coon looked at Prickly Porky, Prickly Porky looked at Scrapper, and all three slowly shook their heads. This was a little more than they could believe. Scrapper certainly was trying to "stuff them," as the saying is.

"That any one wearing fur could possibly look like a man was more than they could swallow."

"I knew it," declared Scrapper. "I knew it. I told you at the start that you wouldn't believe me. But I can tell you one thing, and that is, if you could hear him howl you would be ready to believe almost anything. It certainly would give you the creeps. Yes, sir, it would give you the creeps. Three Generations

By WARWICK DEEPIG

Old John Pybus, formerly a bookkeeper in London and later in Waterbury, is serving as a porter in an inn at Castle Craven when one of his sons comes to him.

INSTALLMENT IV. A FAMILY COMPLICATION.

Early in 1917 John Pybus sold himself up, lock, stock and barrel, and after paying all his creditors, disappeared from Waterbury with some 25 pounds in his pocket. He disappeared, too, out of the lives of his sons. He had cursed them, and without wishing that the old fellow's curses would come home to roost, they found it convenient to remain estranged. Not that they made no effort to find the old man, or failed to make a magnanimous gesture. Pybus, softer-fibered than his brother, happened to be in the southwest on business, broke a journey at Waterbury on one reeking December day, and found the little bookshop in other hands. Squeezed in between two bigger buildings rather like a child in a crowded railway carriage, it reproached Pybus. It looked cold and gray. His father's name had disappeared. The paint was cracked and peeling, and Pybus was wearing a fur lined coat. He had made inquiries. His father's putting up of the shutters had signified a voluntary bankruptcy. John Pybus had departed with honor, but no one knew what had become of him. It took Pybus three months to discover that his father was earning a living as a train conductor in a midland town, and he held out a filial and magnanimous hand.

It was repulsive. John Pybus was not to be pitied. He was quite capable of working, and the intention of accepting three pounds a week and obscurity in a south coast watering place for a London suburb. He said in effect, "You can keep your money, the money that ought to have gone to the men out there in the trenches."

Obstinate old man. After that there was silence, and the silence lasted for ten years. The two Pybus sons had made use of their opportunities. Probyn had bought and sold mill; he had a place at Windover in Bucks; in 1920 he was knighted; Dolly Pybus became Lady Pybus; Lancelot was at Eton. Conrad, still a bachelor, and in the cream and the plumage of the forties, had translated sundry shipping deals into a country estate and culture, and some two hundred thousand pounds safely stowed away. Old Pybus came at last to Castle Craven. He liked the large sky and the rolling country, and the cheerful human bustle of the inn, and the little stone cottage he was allowed to occupy between the garden of the Saracen's Head and the castle field. He had a niche. He was both a nobody and a somebody. He had books and one or two intimates. After his ten years' absence, John Pybus fed the pigeons. White fan tails, blue rocks and half breeds, they came to him from the red roofs of the inn's stables and out from the ruins of the castle.

Any time of the day he had only to take his stand in the stone paved yard or broad passage between his cottage and the inn garden, and whistle his pigeon call, and half a dozen birds would come to him. There were some of them ready to follow him into the cottage, but since the fan tails shed white feathers and John Pybus had a passion for tidiness, he allowed them as far as his doorstep, but no further.

The cottage was half stone, half red brick, with a pantiled roof. The kitchen faced the inn. The window of the living room looked out over John Pybus' patch of garden, and beyond it to the green slopes of the castle field, and to the castle itself with its walls tufted with wallflower and snapdragon.

John Pybus made his own bed. It was a very simple affair, a camp bed of green canvas with one army blanket below and one above and a pair of cotton sheets between them. His furniture, too, was of the simplest, a couple of Windsor chairs, an oak table very worn eaten, a five-tier deal bookcase full of books, a basket chair with a red cushion, a square of green cord carpet to cover the floor. His bedroom floor had no carpet. On the living room mantelpiece in front of a little gilt framed mirror he kept a calendar, his pipes, a tobacco tin, and three photographs, the photos of his wife and his two sons. It was an ironic yet human touch.

He fetched in his own water and swept his own floors, though help was available. The women liked John Pybus. He was a clean and hands-on old man. They spoke of him always as Mr. Pybus, and in an irreverent age that was no light tribute. He read a great deal by the light of a paraffin lamp with a green shade, sitting in the basket chair with the red cushion, and wearing horn rimmed spectacles. He read poetry and philosophy. He was both classical and modern. He subscribed to one of the London libraries, and each month he had a box of books sent down. He was amazingly up to date in his knowledge of social tendencies and of scientific thought. His interest in life as life was deep and unabated.

Mr. Conrad drove over to Windover. Mr. John Pybus' presence at Castle Craven, within a morning's drive of both Windover-hall and Chlois court, was a family complication, and Conrad was a cautious fellow.

Turning in at the lodge gates between two stone pillars capped with griffins, he saw before him the famous avenue of beeches arched like a great green tunnel. Always there was a soft, cool movement of air under the spreading boughs of the old trees. The gray trunks were spaced like the pillars of a temple, and the cool drift of the leaves between them was like young Lance Pybus' imagination that he was feeling the breath of the divine temperament.

Mr. Conrad Pybus, proof against such fancies, saw the redness of the Queen Anne house glowing at the end of the avenue. The old brickwork had the sun upon it, and the sashes of its windows were very white. Chlois Court was bastard Gothic conceived by some early Victorian, and though Conrad's house had a more dramatic exterior than his brother's, he had a little envious of that old red brickwork. It was so mellow. It suggested that Probyn himself had mellowed more gracefully than he had. Younger brother. Yes, there was something Georgian about Probyn. He had developed a country manner, or what he conceived to be a country manner.

Conrad stopped his car on the gravel to the east of the yew hedge and the terrace. Through the square openings in the yew hedge he had glimpses of Probyn's lawns, and the flower borders, and the peached lines of the Dutch garden. It was all very still, and slightly autumnal with the dew yet upon it, and some of the old trees showing here and there a tinge of yellow. Conrad's broad nostrils seemed to be always it appeared to him that Probyn's head gardeners got better results than the fellow who had the castle field. Always better than Probyn's. Jealousy can include the most trivial of details.

You might be jealous of your brother, but you entered his house informally, and Conrad walked towards the terrace, but in the angle that the yew hedge made with the southeast corner of the house young Lance was reading Noel Coward's plays. He had tucked a deck chair into this sheltered corner. His flannel trousers were well up to his knees; his dark blue socks were the socks of a rowing man. He wore a white, blue edged Third Trinity blazer.

"Hallo, Conrad." "Hallo, my lad." There was a sulkiness in these salutations for Probyn's son had the knack of making his uncle feel aggressive and uncomfortable. Eton and Trinity! This second edition of the Pybus text book had received the author's corrections. It was a more complete and polished product. It could lounge in a chair, and glancing up casually, address its uncle as "Hallo, Conrad." Young prig!

"Try the library." Lance Pybus resumed his reading, and his uncle walked on towards the French window of the library. He disliked his nephew, because Lance—even as a child—had been a creature of queer aloofness, the kind of boy who watched you and listened to you with a mysterious grave face, and remained insultingly silent. Lance's very looks were curiously disturbing to his uncle. There was something challenging in the eager, upward lift of the head. His dark hair gave the impression of being blown back. It was like the head of youth running swiftly against the wind. His broad face, with its large and sensitive mouth and short nose, had a young manfulness, a reticent but sparkling shyness. And there were those very blue eyes, either very bright and near or very distant. They were the eyes of that incorruptible old man—his grandfather.

100 Local Teams To Enter Legion Elimination Diamond Play

Best Boys' Team in U. S. To Be Picked

Little World Series Between Two Best Teams To Be Staged in Fall.

BY DICK HAWKINS.

Having no war convenient to occupy its time and being in form or another, the American Legion has started a little civil war all its own. This particular war, however, will not be fought with guns but with outfielders, infielders, batterymen and umpires. And the battle will terminate in a little world series this fall in which the best kid team in the United States will be crowned.

The age limit in this war will be 16 years and under, while the last war in which the members of the legion took part set a higher limit for the maximum.

All of which means that the American Legion is carrying its boys' work into the furthest corners of the United States and will reach something like 150,000 youngsters through the medium of the great national pastime—baseball.

Elimination. Atlanta will play a most important part in the great baseball drive. In fact, it is virtually certain that Atlanta will have nearly 100 teams entered in the gigantic elimination, according to Major Trammell Scott, who has been named commander-in-chief of the Atlanta drive by the American Legion.

State Commander Asa Warren Candler, is devoting long hours to the organization of the movement in Georgia and Usher Winslett, of Macon, is state chairman. The legion is in earnest about the matter and that is a considerable guarantee of its future.

The teams will be composed of 14 men each and a manager. By June 1 each team entering the elimination must have a contract in the hands of the local legion stating its personnel and guaranteeing by the contract that this personnel will not be changed throughout the season.

The winning team in Atlanta will enter a district elimination and then

Martin Expected To Investigate Figures

Evidently John D. Martin, president of the Southern association, is going to look into the Birmingham opening day attendance. Birmingham, you remember, had 88 more paid admissions—so it is alleged—that did Atlanta and was awarded the opening day attendance trophy. Colonel Spiller, of the Crackers, protested.

So did Paul S. Barcroft, chairman of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, opening day committee. Barcroft received a reply from President Martin, after sending him a telegram. Martin's answer was slightly cryptic, saying that he would make an announcement later. Possibly it means that the league head is going to investigate the matter.

The winners go to Macon for the state championship and from there to the divisional title play. From there the lucky team will go to the eastern eliminations and thus a team will be picked from the east and one from the west to play in the little world series in some middle western city this fall. Winners in the state tournaments will have all expenses paid from that point forward by the fund of $50,000 offered by the major leagues this spring.

The ultimate champions will not only be given a trip to the big world series but will travel in a private Pullman along with the major league players in the series and will stay at the same hotels wherever the teams go during the series.

"It's enough to lure any youngster into a game of baseball."

The Atlanta leagues will be organized under the supervision of Major Scott and a preliminary meeting will be held Saturday morning in the auditorium room at the Y. M. C. A. at which time Major Scott will meet anyone who is interested in placing a team in the field.

Eligibility has but two limitations—age and amateur standing. Members of any amateur team can also play on the legion elimination teams but can play on but one legion team during a season. Any club, legion post or individual, can enter a team in the eliminations by applying to Major Scott and signing a contract. In other cities in Georgia where there is not a legion post a civic club may sponsor the team and place it on the list by applying to Chairman Winslett in Macon.

The SPORTLIGHT

THE KID'S LAST BITE.

I seen Kid Mack on the street today, Goofy lookin' and thin. They say he's cuttin' out paper dolls From too many on the chin.

He's wearin' a groggy fiddle and flute, And he's missin' a lotta meals. There ain't much work for a punch-drunk bum When he's walkin' on his heels.

His manager used to be Abe the Pig. That's the papers called "The Fox." Abe always squawked from outside the ring When the Kid went into box.

Abe is around with a bankroll now That's thicker than Tooney's chest. And a purple car and a swell blonde broad With diamonds and all the rest.

The Kid made plenty of dough for Abe And split it without a fuss. In the days when he followed Abe's yell— "Get in there; he can't hurt us!"

DON SKENE.

There may be some doubt as to what the favorite grip in modern boxing is the interlocking.

A flock of modern boxers think the crowd should be willing to pay them $30,000 or more just for taking a bow. Even that is more interesting than most of the fighting they do.

Ballyhoo and Raspberry.

A day or two ago I ran across two fight experts who should know what they are talking about. If anyone does, which seems to be doubtful when it comes to the fight game.

"I hate to see this ballyhoo started," one said. "Tunney is a 1-to-5 foot and will win an uninteresting contest without any trouble. He is faster than Heeneey, a much better boxer and a much harder hitter with either hand. I can't see much of a contest, but the steam-up is already on."

"Heeneey will win, sure," the other said. "He is stronger than Tunney, more aggressive and harder to hurt. He won't be in there with Dempsey's legs. He can't hit Tunney as hard as Dempsey did, but he will hit him often. Heeneey has been fighting while Tunney has been living the soft life, which is exactly the opposite of fighting. Seaside sand and the rosie of the ring are far apart."

All that one knows now is this: It will have to be entirely decided from almost every heavyweight fight held in the last year to be interesting in any way.

Dempsey kept the action moving. Tunney is out now, and it will be up to Tunney, the champion, to keep the action from lagging. Heeneey is willing enough but he must locate the old Bloise to churn up any drama worth writing. There was no sign of drama in the Heeneey-Sharkey or the Heeneey-Delaney shows.

The Strongest Half.

There may be some argument as to which team has the strongest infield, but there isn't much debate left about the strongest right side. The St. Louis Cardinals win this one without a murmur, with Bottomley and Frisch. The Cardinal combination is stronger than Gehrig and Lazzeri, Terry and Cohen, Grantham and Adams, or what you will.

If the left side of the cardinal infield holds up without too many wrinkles there will be a ball club to beat.

More Flying Feet.

Dear Sir: In figuring Olympic possibilities do not forget Tom Sharkey. He is a Miami (Okla.) university and George Simpson, the Ohio State flyer. Those boys will give any of the candidates a battle in the 100 and 200-yard events. Sharkey clipped the century in 9 3/5 last summer, and later was beaten by Simpson, an Ohio State sophomore. Two years ago, Sharkey met Roland Locke in the 220 and the result was one of those hairline finishes. Both Sharkey and Simpson are showing excellent form this spring and should easily win places on the American team and perhaps points in Amsterdam.

F. J. P.

Overflowing Crimson Tide.

Dear Sir: Alabama university continues to be the grist mill that grinds out major league ball players. The nucleus for a fair team could be formed from the Sewell brothers, Stephenson, Cohen, Gillis and Barnard. Another "Barnard" will be up next year when Tommy Sewell rejoins the Cub. The younger Sewell has the makings of a fine first baseman, but needed experience. So he'll spend the summer with Reading instead of in the majors. And others still are on the campus who have possibilities.

OVERLAND RED.

In answering L. F. D., I should say the first essential of good putting is ease and comfort of position, combined with lightness of grip, speaking on the physical side. These lead to another back and less inclination to stab at the ball. The head and body should be kept reasonably still, without being as rigid as iron posts. The two movements thereafter are to bring the club back on the right line, not outside, and stroke through the ball. Putting is largely mental and few of these details will come off where one is in a mental flutter with all confidence missing. Confidence helps to make putting and good putting helps to increase confidence. So there you are.

Columbus Wins Attendance Cup

Montgomery, Ala., April 18.—(P)—Cliff Green, president of the Southeastern league, today announced that Columbus, Ga., had won the Thomas Huston trophy for the largest opening day attendance. The Georgia city played to 4,191 paid admissions. Jacksonville was second with 3,921 and Montgomery third with 3,921.

Other cities in the league reported their attendance as follows: Selma, 3,320; Savannah, 3,027; Pensacola, 2,400; Albany, 2,080; and Tampa, 1,662.

Considering the fact that every city in the league experienced wet and cool weather on opening day, Mr. Green said that the attendance figures were "most satisfactory." The total attendance, the league president stated, was approximately 25 per cent greater than on opening day last year.

All Square.

Cape Town, South Africa, April 18.—(P)—Two days' play in their international tennis test matches tonight left France and South Africa all square, with three victories apiece. The competition will end tomorrow.

In doubles play today Eaglestone and C. R. Blackhead, of South Africa, defeated Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon, of France, 8-6, 6-4. Borotra fought more or less of a lone battle against the South Africans, for Brugnon has not yet recovered from his recent illness.

Miss Maddox And Mrs. Beck Enter Finals

Will Clash Today for Title in Women's Golf Tourney.

BY WHITNER CARY.

Mrs. L. H. Beck and Miss Margaret Maddox will battle for the final of the championship flight of the spring handicap tournament of the Atlanta Women's Golf association at Druid Hills Thursday morning.

This state of affairs was brought about Wednesday morning when Mrs. Beck triumphed over Miss Rosalie May, who had won the title from the final before decision and Miss May in the won from Tommie Wilson, 4-2.

Miss May, who only Tuesday defeated Mrs. Helen Dargan Lowndes in a match, it went to the 19th hole was out in 41 in her match against Mrs. Beck. She turned two up. Nothing daunted Mrs. Beck, who played very steady golf during the entire match, proceeded to win four of the next five holes. Miss May then evened the count when she annexed the 16th and 18th. They halved the 17th and then Mrs. Beck won the match on the 18th. The winner was in receipt of six strokes from Miss May. Approximate medal scores show that Mrs. Beck had a 93 and Miss May a 92.

Improved.

Miss Maddox, playing in much improved fashion over her Tuesday performance, had a hard fight with Mrs. Wilson, but managed to get the verdict at 4-2.

In the second flight, Mrs. A. R. Gallenkamp won a very close decision over Mrs. C. E. Williamson, while Mrs. Roy Burns, continuing her good shooting, presented day holed Mrs. Glenn, 4-3. Mrs. Albert Jones and Mrs. Fowler will battle in the final of the third flight. The former, from Mrs. Johnnie Welch, 3-2, and the latter was victorious over Mrs. C. W. Strickler.

First Flight.

Mrs. L. H. Beck defeated Miss Rosalie May, 1 up; Miss Margaret Maddox defeated Mrs. Tommie Wilson, 4-2.

Second Flight.

Mrs. A. R. Gallenkamp defeated Mrs. C. E. Williamson, 2-1; Mrs. Roy Burns defeated Mrs. Glenn, 4-3.

Third Flight.

Mrs. Albert Jones defeated Mrs. Johnnie Welch, 3-2; Mrs. F. L. Fowler defeated Mrs. C. W. Strickler, 2 up.

ANDY PAYNE HARD PUSHED TO HOLD LEAD

Miami, Okla., April 13.—(P)—Having satisfied the home town folks at Claremore yesterday by spurring along to recapture the lead in the cross-country marathon run, Andrew Payne resumed his steady jogging today and allowed Peter Gavuzzi, of Southampton, England, to almost capture the leadership.

The Britisher finished first in the 52-mile grind from Chelsea, Okla., in 6:48:28, bringing his elapsed time for the 1,721.1 miles to 287:55:38. Although Andy Payne did not come in until fifth, when he finished with Ed Gardner, Seattle, negro, in a dead heat in 8:31:30. His elapsed time of 287:42:22, gave him a 13-minute advantage over his most persistent rival. The lead has seen-sawed back and forth between the two for 10 days while the runners traversed Oklahoma.

John Salo, Passaic, N. J., forced out temporarily yesterday with stomach trouble, made up his time today and permitted the match to go on only one time of 308:14:47, that keeps him in third place. He said he virtually had recovered from the illness.

Louis Perella, Albany, N. Y., finished fourth in 8:31:30, elapsed time being 334:35 flat. Gardner's elapsed time was 325:25:17.

The runners cross the southeastern corner of Missouri tomorrow and enter Missouri, pausing at Joplin overnight.

Paul Simpson, Burlington, N. C., finished today's jog in 10:42:37 for a total elapsed time of 512:12:00.

Fort Valley Wins, 27-1.

Macon, Ga., April 18.—Fort Valley smothered the Bida Etta nine here in a deluge of hits and runs, and when the wreck was over the adding machine totaled 27 runs for the Valley boys and one lone tally for Macon. "Stinky" Armstrong was on the mound for Fort Valley, and let Macon down with three hits, while his teammates chased three pitchers to the showers.

Annual Spring Dances Will Feature Series; Murdock Will Oppose 'Bama in First Game.

BY BOB SHERROD.

Athens, Ga., April 18.—The Georgia Bulldogs, with a clean conference slate, will face the University of Alabama baseball team here Friday and Saturday in a two-game series. The games will be played during the gala festivities of annual spring dances at Athens, which are said to always draw larger crowds of visitors than any other college social entertainment in the south.

Lefty Murdock, sophomore southpaw sensation, has been selected by Coach White to oppose the Alabamaans in the Friday game, while Jack Waller, veteran of three seasons, is slated to work for the Bulldogs on the slab Saturday. Murdock will be remembered as pitching the only shutout that has thus far been registered by the Red and Black. Waller has lost only one game and that to the crack University of Michigan.

The regular lineup is scheduled to appear with Freeman or Daventport playing second, and Rothstein, Steele or Martin in the right garden. In case Rothstein plays, he will cover first base and Tom Nash will go to the outfield.

The Georgians have won all their college games except two played with Michigan, and a tie with Auburn. Next week the Whitemen go on a road trip to the Carolinas. They will play six games in as many days.

The Georgia record: Georgia 13, Mercer 9; Georgia 9, Mercer 7; Georgia 9, Kentucky 0; Georgia 6, Kentucky 1; Georgia 9, Maryland 1; Georgia 5, Maryland 4; Georgia 15, Mercer 2; Georgia 3, Auburn 3 (tie); Georgia 3, Michigan 8; Georgia 7, Michigan 12.

Rough Bout Is Seen At Mat Show Friday

Jack McGuire and Stanley Stasiak, principals in the main event of the wrestling show at the Atlanta theater Friday night, have met before. The fact that they are not strangers is one reason why Matchmaker John Contos is predicting a rousing scrap when the two clash Friday night.

While Contos will not go so far as to predict a "grudge match," he does intimate there is no love lost between the two wrestlers. It seems that in a match at Philadelphia McGuire by being rougher and faster than Stasiak managed to cop the decision. Naturally Stasiak welcomes the chance of returning the beating and has decided to do it no later than Friday night.

Atlanta fans are willing to believe that both Stasiak and McGuire have a right to their reputation for being mean. They have seen each of the main event principals in action here. Stasiak appeared here a couple of months ago in opposition to Scotty McDougal and for the better part of two hours they kept the cash customers in a constant uproar of excitement. Finally the bout became so rough that even the police could stand no more. They stepped into the ring and Stasiak had agreed to lay off his rough tactics.

In addition to sheer physical power Stasiak revealed considerable brains. He is capable of holding his own with the best men in the game, particularly as he is much stronger than the average wrestler.

However, the main event is not the only promising attraction in connection with the Friday night show. There is the one hour semi-swinging involving the well known Pete Sauer and Joe Zigmund, mayor of Brainard, Nebraska.

Contos has been trying to get Zigmund here all season, but it was only last week that his persistent efforts were rewarded. Zigmund is of the same type of wrestler as McGuire, Stasiak, Dick Davis, Scotty McDougal and the rest of the "B"s who go in almost exclusively for rough stuff.

Zigmund is quite a colorful character, but because of his reputation as a wrestler and the fact that he is mayor of his home town. That is a distinction that no other professional athlete, at least a wrestler, has ever held.

Tickets for the Friday night show are on sale at the Piedmont Hatters, Piedmont Hotel Cigar stand and at the James Hat Cleaning parlors.
